Without prejudice to the above, our services to Clients are provided on the understanding that where the Client transfers monetary funds and/or Collateral to the Company by way of Margin or otherwise, we will treat this as a transfer of full ownership of such monetary funds and/or Collateral to the Company for the purpose of securing or covering the Client's present, future, actual, contingent or prospective obligations, and we will not treat such money and/or Collateral as 'Client Funds'. Accordingly, without prejudice to any other provisions of this Agreement, we shall have the right to pledge, charge, loan or otherwise use or dispose of all or part of such money and/or Collateral provided to us by way of Margin, as if we were the beneficial owner thereof. We will transfer an equivalent amount of money and/or Collateral back to the Client where, at the Company's sole discretion, it considers that the amount of money and/or Collateral the Client has transferred to it is more than is necessary to cover the Client's present and future obligations to the Company. The Company may request any additional information and other due diligence work on the Client prior to accepting any withdrawal orders by the Client if the request for the withdrawal is for the funds to be sent to a different account/source from that which was originally used to Fund the Client's account with the Company. The Company maintains the right not to execute – at its discretion and without having to provide any explanation - any withdrawal of funds to a different account from that which they were initially deposited from and may return the funds to the same source they were originally deposited/transferred from. The Client consents to this treatment.

Furthermore, in such instances, we reserve the right, at our sole discretion, to take all action as we see fit, including, without limitation, completely blocking access to our Online Trading Systems, blocking and/or revoking your Access Codes and/or terminating your Account. Under these circumstances, we reserve the right to seize any profits and/or revenues generated directly or indirectly by exercising any such prohibited trading activity and we shall be entitled to inform any Interested third parties of your breach of this clause; any active Orders associated with the same fraudulent credit card and/or Account will also be cancelled immediately; we have, and will continue to develop any tools necessary to identify credit/debit card fraud; any dispute arising from such fraudulent activity will be resolved by us in our sole and absolute discretion, in the manner we deem to be the fairest to all concerned; that decision shall be final and/or binding on all participants; no correspondence will be entered into.

The Company is under no obligation to transfer any securities, if, in the opinion of the Company, such assignment/transfer is prohibited by or is not compliant with any effective law or regulation applicable to such transfer.

In case of the transfer of some of securities turns out to be unachievable or impossible, the Company shall duly notify the Client and continue holding such securities until further instructions from the Client.

In the event of the Client's Orders being executed by third parties, the Client's relevant operations with securities and Funds, the safe-keeping of shares and other securities and/or records kept on the rights to shares and other securities of the Client will be carried out on the Company's custody accounts opened with such third parties (or with other custodians) and bank accounts with credit institutions in the manner and on the terms determined by third parties (custodians) and credit institutions.

The procedure for maintaining aforementioned custody accounts and bank accounts shall be regulated by laws and other statutory acts of the countries of registration of the depositaries and institutions with which Clients assets are held, therefore the Client's rights related to these financial instruments and/or monetary funds may be changed accordingly.

The Company shall notify the Client of any cases when it is not possible to maintain financial instruments with a third party separately from own financial instruments of this third party and shall give express notice of the related risks.

The Company reserves the right and the Client acknowledges the Company's right to keep the Client's monetary funds and financial instruments in omnibus accounts opened with third parties on a fungible basis. In this case the Company guarantees to the Client the following:

- the Company has in place systems and controls which ensure internal separate accounting of monetary funds and financial instrument of each Client held in omnibus accounts with third parties;
- the Company conducts on regular basis reconciliations between its internal accounts and those of any third parties by whom Clients' monetary funds and financial instruments are held.

The Company shall bear no responsibility before the Client for any actions, inactions or omissions of a third party and also for any losses incurred by the Client as a result of actions, inactions or omissions of a third party unless such losses directly arises from the Company's willful default or fraud or gross negligence. The Company shall also bear no responsibility or liability for unfavorable consequences for the Client due to the insolvency/bankruptcy of a third party.

The Company concludes agreements with third parties which agree to segregate Clients' monetary funds and financial instruments from their own Funds. However, the third party to whom the Company will pass Client assets may hold it in an omnibus account and it may not be possible to separate it from its other Clients' money, or the third party's money. In the event of the insolvency or any other analogous proceedings in relation to that third party, the Company may only have an unsecured claim against the third party on behalf of the Client, and the Client will be exposed to the risk that the money received by the Company from the third party is insufficient to satisfy the claims of the Client with claims in respect of the relevant account. The Company does not accept any liability or responsibility for any resulting losses.

The Company has a right to hold the Client's monetary funds and financial instruments with credit and financial institutions in different countries. In such circumstances the legal and regulatory regime may differ from that applicable in the Saint Vincent and the Grenadines with the effect that in the insolvency or equivalent failure of that bank or third party the treatment afforded to Client funds may be different to the treatment afforded to Client funds held in an account with a bank or third party subject to the Saint Vincent and the Grenadines laws. The Company will not be liable for any failure or insolvency of any bank or third party; however, applicable investor compensation or deposit protection schemes may protect a proportion of Client funds with any bank or third party. In the event of the insolvency or any other analogous proceedings in relation to that third party, the company will only have an unsecured claim against the third party on behalf of you and the company's other clients, and you will be exposed to the risk that the money received by the company from the third party is insufficient to satisfy the claims of you and all other clients with claims in respect of the relevant account. When the Company holds the Client's monetary funds and financial instruments outside Saint Vincent and the Grenadines they will be subject to the laws of that state and the Client's rights in relation to those monetary funds and financial instruments may differ accordingly.

13. MARGIN DEPOSITS, COLLATERAL AND PAYMENT

Margin and collateral

Margin is the amount of cash which the Client is required to deposit with the Company in order to enter into Transactions/Contracts. Before the Client places a Transaction and/or Contract which creates an open position the Client must ensure that the Margin in his account is sufficient to cover the Margin Requirement in respect of that open position where such margin requirements exist. If the Client's Margin is less than the Margin Requirement for the open position he wishes to create, the Company may reject his Transaction and/or Contract. The Margin Requirement must be maintained at all times until the open position is closed and may increase or decrease at any time until the open position is closed.

Contingent liability: Where the Company effects or arranges a Transaction and/or Contract, involving, for instance, a Contract for Differences, the Client should note that, depending upon the nature of the Transaction or Contract, the Client may be liable to make further payments when the Transaction and/or Contract fails to be completed or upon the earlier settlement or closing out of your position. The Client will be required to make further variable payments by way of Margin against the purchase price of the investment, instead of paying (or receiving) the whole purchase (or sale) price immediately. The movement in the Market Price of the Client's investment will affect the amount of Margin payment he will be required to make.

Margin call: The Client must provide to the Company on demand such sums by way of Margin as the Company may in its reasonable discretion require. The Company may, in some circumstances, require higher margin depending on market conditions, market circumstances, total equity of all Accounts held with it, or due to the size and/or volume of the Client's trading activity with it.

Margin requirements: The Company may change its Margin requirements at any time. Any requirement for Margin payments must be satisfied within such time as may be specified by the Company or, if none is specified, immediately. One Margin call does not preclude another.

Margin requirements prior to and during Market Disruption: Without prejudice to what is set out herein above, the Company at its sole discretion may temporarily require higher margin for placing new Orders for any specific or all Financial Instruments (compared to the normal margin requirements of the Client's account) in the following, non-exhaustive cases:

- a. Prior to and/or during Friday market closure;
- b. Prior and/or during to any other market closure for any specific or all Financial Instruments;
- c. Prior and/or during to any major news announcements, such as, but not limited to, the Non-farm Payroll announcement;
- d. Prior and/or during to any anticipated abnormal Market conditions and/or Market Disruptions.

The above temporary increase of the margin requirements is only intended to affect new orders placed following the implementation of the new margin requirements and it will not affect any Orders which have been placed prior to the implementation of the new margin requirements.

Form of Margin: Margin must be provided in the form of cash or, only in those instances in which the Parties may agree otherwise, other assets, such as collateral (by which we mean investments, securities, bonds or any other financial instrument, property or asset acceptable to us in lieu of cash) ("Collateral") (all together "Assets"). The currency of the cash Margin the Client pays to the Company shall be the currency of the relevant underlying Transaction (if applicable) or as the Company may in its discretion reasonably decide from time to time. Cash Margin is paid to the Company as an outright transfer of title and you will not retain any interest in it.

Failure to meet Margin call: The Client is responsible for maintaining appropriate arrangements with the Company at all times for the receipt and communication of information regarding Margin. The Client shall promptly deliver any money or property deliverable by him in respect of any Transaction or Contract in accordance with the terms of that Transaction or Contract and with any instructions given by the Company for the purpose of enabling us to perform our obligations under any corresponding Transaction or Contract entered into between the Parties and a third party. If the Client fails to provide the Company with the required Margin, deposits or other payable amounts in accordance with the terms of any Transaction or Contract within in the required time, the Company will be entitled, at its sole discretion, to close out any open Transaction or Contract without prior notice to the Client and apply any proceeds thereof to payment of any amounts due to us and/or, as the Company deems fit at its sole discretion. Such failure may also be considered as an Event of Default.

Currency Conversion: All initial and subsequent calls for Margin shall be made in the currency of the Transaction and/or Contract, or in the currency of the Client's Account as the Company may determine, in such amounts as the Company may in its absolute discretion require; the Company is authorized to convert funds in the Client's account for Margin into and from such foreign currency at a rate of exchange determined by the Company on the basis of the then prevailing money market rates. In such circumstances, the Company will not be liable to you for any loss suffered by the Client as a result of such action (although, the Company will use reasonable endeavours to only convert such funds as may prudently be required to cover the position in respect of the relevant transaction).

Refusal to accept Margin: We reserve the right to return to the Client at any time, with or without reasons and without being obliged to provide you with any justification of explanation, any Assets deposited with the Company by way of Margin, Collateral, deposits or otherwise.

Margin call level / stop-out level: The Client accepts that the Company's Online Trading Systems operate with an automated risk monitoring, Margin Call and Stop-out facility designed to monitor the overall utilization of your available collateral in support of the Company's prevailing Margin and cash Funding requirements for the Transactions and/or Contracts the Clients are entering into via the Company's Online Trading Systems; using this automated risk monitoring, Margin Call and Stop-out facility, the Company will, unless otherwise stated, apply initial, maintenance or close out Margin call at the prevailing Margin Call or Stop-out levels, as stated from time to time on the Company's Online Trading Systems.

The Company's Margin Call monitoring and stop-out systems ensure that the Client's maximum possible risk is his Account equity. When the Client has losing positions, his Margin Level will go down and may become close to the Margin Call Level. When the Client has winning positions, his Margin Level will go up and the Margin Call Level may become more remote.

The Client is, however, fully and personally responsible for monitoring the activity of their Accounts, including, without limitation, whether and when their open positions reach Margin Call Level. Additionally, the Client understands and accepts that the Company's Margin Call monitoring and stop-out systems do not provide any guarantee that the Client's maximum possible loss shall not exceed his Account equity particularly in situations of extreme market volatility.

The "Stop-out Level" is the level of Client's equity where the Company's Online Trading Systems will start automatically to close trading positions (starting from the least profitable position and until the Margin Level requirement is met) in order to prevent further account losses into the negative territory.

In the case where a 'Stop Order' or 'Limit Order' (or 'Entry Stop' or 'Limit') is entered at the same price that would trigger a Stop-out, the Stop-out will be executed when that price is touched (or gaps through the price) and all pending Orders attached to that trade will be cancelled.

A MARGIN CALL OR, AS THE CASE MAY BE, STOP-OUT, WHEN TRIGGERED, WILL TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER OTHER ORDER TYPES.

Security

Security interest: All Assets belonging to the Client which the Company may at any time be holding for you (either individually, jointly with another, or as a guarantor of the account of any other person) or which may at any time be in the Company's possession or control or carried on the Company's books for any purpose, including safekeeping, are to be held by us as security for the performance of the Client's obligations to the Company shall be held subject to a general lien and right of set-off for any of your liabilities to us and irrespective of the number of Accounts the Client may have with the Company. Without limitation, such security shall comprise the credit balances on the Client's Account(s), any securities registered as belonging to the Client on the Company's books, and the value of the Client's open positions with the Company. The Company may, in its absolute discretion and without notice to the Client, apply and/or transfer any or all Assets belonging to the Client between any of the Client's accounts with the Company and combine or set off between accounts and convert any currency into another. Without prejudice to any other rights to which the Company may be entitled, it may at any time and without notice to the Client set off any amounts (whether actual or contingent, present or future) at any time owing between the Client and the Company paying the Client the difference. The Client may not withdraw or substitute any Assets or property subject to the Company's security interest without its prior express and written consent.

Without prejudice to the above paragraph, our services to Clients are provided on the understanding that where the Client transfers money and/or Collateral to the Company by way of Margin or otherwise, we will treat this as a transfer of full ownership of such money and/or Collateral to the Company for the purpose of securing or covering the Client's present, future, actual, contingent or prospective obligations, and we will not treat such money and/or Collateral as 'Client Funds'. Accordingly, without prejudice to any other provisions of this Agreement, we shall have the right to pledge, charge, loan or otherwise use or dispose of all or part of such money and/or Collateral provided to us by way of Margin, as if we were the beneficial owner thereof. We will transfer an equivalent amount of money and/or Collateral back to the Client where, at the Company's sole discretion, it considers that the amount of money and/or Collateral the Client has transferred to it is more than is necessary to cover the Client's present and future obligations to the Company. The Client agrees that Collateral provided in the form of investments will be returned to him in the form of investments of the same description and amount as those accepted by the Company as Collateral, but that any such Collateral returned to the Client need not be the actual investments provided by the Client.

Set-off on Default: If an Event of Default occurs (as defined hereinafter) or this Agreement terminates, the Company shall set-off the balance of cash Margin owed by it to the Client against the Client's obligations (as reasonably valued by us) to the Company. The net amount, if any, payable between us following such set-off, shall take into account the amounts payable to the Company under the Clause headed "Netting" of these Brokerage Regulations.

Right to pledge, re-pledge, hypothecate, invest or loan: The Client hereby warrants and represents that any property or Assets he transfers to the Company as Collateral under these Brokerage Regulations are free from any lien, security interest or other encumbrance other than the lien created under these Brokerage Regulations. The Client hereby also grants to the Company the right to pledge, re-pledge, hypothecate, invest or loan, either separately or with the property of other clients any Collateral we hold for you whether, to ourselves as broker or to others in satisfaction of our clients' obligations to us or such third party.

Negative pledge: The Client undertakes neither to create nor to have outstanding any security interest whatsoever over, nor to agree to assign or transfer, any of the cash or non-cash Margin transferred to the Company, except a lien routinely imposed on all securities in a clearing system in which such securities may be held.

Power to charge: The Client agrees that the Company may, to the extent that any of the Margin the Client provides it under these Brokerage Regulations constitutes "financial collateral" and this Agreement and the Client's obligations hereunder constitute a "Security financial collateral arrangement", free of any adverse interest of the Client or any other person, grant a security interest over Margin provided by the Client to cover any of the Company's obligations to an intermediate broker or Market, including obligations owed by virtue of the positions held by us or other of our clients.

Power of sale: If an Event of Default occurs (as defined hereinafter), the Company may exercise the power to sell all or any part of the Margin the Client provides it with under these Brokerage Regulations and shall be entitled to apply the proceeds of sale or other disposal in paying the costs of such sale or other disposal and in or towards satisfaction of the secured Obligations. Such sale shall take place by the means that the Company in its reasonable discretion determines and at the price that we in our reasonable discretion determine to be the best obtainable.

General lien: In addition and without prejudice to any rights, the Company shall be entitled to a general lien on all Assets and property held on the Client's behalf by the Company, until the satisfaction of all secured Obligations. Without limitation, such general lien shall comprise the credit balances on the Client Accounts, the securities registered as belonging to the Client on our books, and the value of the Client's open positions with the Company. The Company may, in its absolute discretion and without notice to the Client, apply and/or transfer any or all such Assets which the Client has deposited at any time with the Company or which may at any time be in the Company's possession or control or carried on our books for any purpose, including safe keeping, between any of the Client Accounts with the Company and combine or set off between accounts and convert any currency into another. Without prejudice to any other rights to which the Company may be entitled, it may at any time and without notice to the Client set-off any amounts (whether actual or contingent, present or future) at any time owing between you and us paying the Client the difference.

14. DEBT OBLIGATIONS

Neither the Client nor the Company, who deal with the Securities, have a right to use such Securities as the subject of any transaction, as pledge, debt repayment, payment, debt obligations or as any other form of deriving profit, except as pursuant to the effective legislation or these Regulations.

15. REGISTRATION OF OBLIGATIONS OF THE COMPANY

When entering into each transaction which requires registration, the Company shall carry out such registration on the Client's behalf or on its own behalf, but at the expense of the Client, and all registration fees shall be paid up by the Client and shall be debited from the Client's Cash Account.

The Company shall, at the Client's expense, take every reasonable measure to ensure that the securities are registered with a relevant register and, if required, present a receipt or an excerpt from such register that such registration was performed.

The Company shall be entitled to appoint an agent to perform registrations. The Company, or its agent, may rely upon any document or other communication reasonably believed by the Company or its agents to be genuine and correct; and/or upon any person who is authorized to settle these issues.

The Company makes no representations or warranties as to the truth, completeness or accuracy of any extract from any register or that the extract properly states the interest of the interested party.

Registration of the transaction and/or securities shall be made in accordance with the legislation requirements of the country where the transaction executed and/or securities issued.

16. FEES AND COMMISSIONS

The Client shall reimburse the Company and third parties providing services to the Company the following expenses (hereinafter referred to as the "Expenses"), incurred by the Company in the course of the proper fulfillment of its obligations under the present Brokerage Regulations:

Lime Ltd maintains the right to liquidate any open market positions held by these Clients unilaterally and without any prior authorization from the Client in order to cover the "Compliance and Anti-Money Laundering Review and Monitoring" fee arising in the event that the funds held by the affected client do not suffice to cover such fee at the moment it is due. The Client explicitly consents to such liquidation at the discretion of the Company and in accordance to the Company's Best Execution Policy. The quarterly "Compliance and Anti-Money Laundering Review and Monitoring" fee will commence from 28th February 2022.

When executing a Client Order to purchase securities and/or transfer monetary funds in a currency other than the currency of the funds that form the Portfolio, one currency shall be converted into another currency at the exchange rate quoted by the converting bank at the time of conversion.

At conversion the rounding off shall be made in accordance with standard rule, up to minimal monetary unit of currency of conversion (cent, eurocent, kopeck). If the third figure after a comma is less, than 5 the rounding off shall be made aside reduction (the rounding off shall be made in favor of the Company). In case of the third figure after a comma is more or equals to 5 the rounding off shall be made in greater party (the rounding off shall be made in favor of the Client).

Expenses incurred for maintaining the Company's bank client accounts shall not be charged to the Client's account and shall be paid by the Company independently.

The Company reserves the right to amend, alter, modify, delete or add to any of these Commissions and Charges at any time and at its sole discretion. When these Commissions and Charges are modified (hereinafter referred to as "Changes") the Company will post such Changes on its Online Trading Systems and/or otherwise notify the Client of such Changes, each such notification of which shall be deemed as sufficient notice and it is the Client's duty to consult and/or to check regularly the information posted under on the Company's Online Trading Facility regarding any such Changes. Therefore, the Clients should review the relevant fee schedules on the Company's Online Trading System from time to time so as to ensure that he will be aware of any such Changes. Except if, and then to the extent provided otherwise in these Brokerage Regulations, all Changes shall be effective five (5) calendar days after their initial posting on our Online Trading Facility, or as of the first time that you access and/or use our Online Trading System after such amendments are made, whichever is sooner. The Client's continued use of the Company's Online Trading System after the publication of any Changes shall be considered as the Client's agreement to such Changes and shall be governed by these Brokerage Regulations, as modified. If the Client does not wish to be bound by those Changes, he should cease to use the Company's Online Trading System, and inform the Company in writing, immediately.

The Company shall not be liable for any error of judgment or any loss suffered by the Client in connection with the use of its services provided and in particular, but without limitation, the Company shall not be held liable for any loss which may be sustained in relation to the purchase, storage or sale of any securities, unless such loss arises from bad faith, willful default or fraud on the part of the Company or any of its employees.

The Client indemnifies the Company from all costs and expenses reasonably incurred and also against debts payable to third parties pursuant to or in connection with the provision of services by the Company, unless due to the negligence, willful default or fraud on the part of the Company.

As compensation for the provision of services, the Company charges the Client, and the Client undertakes to pay to the Company the fee according to the procedure for Company's fee calculation specified in APPENDIX 8 to the present Brokerage Regulations.

Unless otherwise specified in agreement(s) for provision of services or in addenda between the Company and Client, all amounts due to the Company and/or third parties providing services to the Company shall be deducted from the Client's monetary funds held in the Company without the requirement of the Client's additional consent. The Client authorizes the Company at any time, at the Company's discretion and without further notice to the Client to set-off and/or charge any of the Client's assets in order to discharge any of the Client's obligations to the Company and/or third parties.

If at any time the Client's funds are freely available at the Client's Account(s) with the Company and are insufficient to cover the expenses incurred by the Company, the Client shall promptly deposit funds to cover the deficiency. If the Client fails to make the said deposit within 5 (five) working days from the moment a relevant notification is sent, the Company may proceed with the sale of financial instruments from the Client's securities account(s)/Custody Account(s) without further notice to the Client unless otherwise agreed upon by the Company and the Client. The Company will then notify the Client of the effected sale orally, via email or by sending a relevant notification via the Company's Trading Systems.

The Client confirms its awareness with the fact that in case of absence in the Client's Accounts of cash and/or securities necessary for the execution of the Client's Order, and also in the event that no cash is available for the payment of the Company's services and others expenses incurred by the Company according to the terms of these Brokerage Regulations, the Company shall not be obliged to execute any Client Orders.

17. INDUCEMENTS

The Company, further to the fees and charges paid or provided to or by the Client or other person on behalf of the Client, may pay and/or receive fees/commission to/from third-parties, provided that these benefits are designed to enhance the quality of the offered service to the Client and not impair compliance with the Company's duty to act in the best interests of the Client.

A fee, commission or non-monetary benefit shall be considered to be designed to enhance the quality of the relevant service to the client if all of the following conditions are met:

- a) it is justified by the provision of an additional or higher level service to the relevant client, proportional to the level of inducements received, such as:
- i. the provision of non-independent investment advice on and access to a wide range of suitable financial instruments including an appropriate number of instruments from third party product providers having no close links with the Company;
 - ii. the provision of non-independent investment advice combined with either: an offer to the client, at least on an annual basis, to assess the continuing suitability of the financial instruments in which the client has invested; or with another on-going service that is likely to be of value to the client such as advice about the suggested optimal asset allocation of the client; or
 - iii. the provision of access, at a competitive price, to a wide range of financial instruments that are likely to meet the needs of the client, including an appropriate number of instruments from third party product providers having no close links with the Company, together with either the provision of added-value tools, such as objective information tools helping the relevant client to take investment decisions or enabling the relevant client to monitor, model and adjust the range of financial instruments in which it has invested, or providing periodic reports of the performance and costs and charges associated with the financial instruments.
- b) it does not directly benefit the recipient firm, its shareholders or employees without a tangible benefit to the relevant client;
- c) it is justified by the provision of an on-going benefit to the relevant client in relation to an on-going inducement.

The Company may pay fees/commissions to introducing brokers, referral agents, or other third parties based on a written agreement. These fees/commissions may be related to the frequency/volume of transactions performed by the Client through the Company. The Company may also receive fees/commissions as well as other remuneration from third parties based on a written agreement. The Company may receive fees/commissions from the counterparty through which it executes transactions (if applicable). Such fees/commissions are related to the frequency/volume of transactions executed through the counterparty.

18. NETTING

Unless otherwise agreed between the Company and the Client, if as of any date the same amounts in the same currency are due to the Company and the Client, then, as of this date, the obligations to make payment of any such amount shall be automatically discharged. If the amounts due are not in the same currency, the Company shall, at its own discretion, convert such amounts to set off mutual obligations without contacting to the Client.

Unless otherwise agreed between the Company and the Client, if the aggregate amount due to the Company exceeds the aggregate amount due to the Client, then the Client shall pay the difference to the Company and the mutual obligations to make payment will be set off. In any case the final amount to be paid by either the Company or the Client shall be the difference between their payment obligations.

If settlements are made under transactions to buy/sell Securities, which are executed by the Company and counterparties at the Client's request, and there are no other arrangements made with the Client and a counterparty, any obligations related to similar counterclaims between the Client and a counterparty under such transactions, which include the transfer of funds and Securities, shall be automatically settled.

In the absence of any other arrangements with the Client and the counterparty under Securities buy/sell transactions, which were executed by the Company and counterparties on the Client's request, if amounts of counterclaims differ, mutual claims may be offset after the Client pays the counterparty or the counterparty pays the Client any amount equal to the difference between their payment obligations.

If amounts payable under Securities buy/sell transactions, which were executed by the Company and counterparties at the Client's request, and the Client's available funds are denominated in various currencies, the Company may convert, at its discretion, with no additional consent of the Client in order to offset obligations.

In the absence of any other arrangements with the Client and a counterparty under Securities buy/sell transactions, which were executed by the Company and counterparties at the Client's request, if the number of Securities under counterclaims differs, mutual claims may be offset after the Client delivers to the counterparty or the counterparty delivers to the Client the number of Securities equal to the difference between their mutual obligations related to the delivery of Securities.

If the aggregate amount that is payable by one Party exceeds the aggregate amount that is payable by the other Party, then the Party by whom the larger aggregate amount is payable shall pay the excess to the other Party and the obligations to make payment of each party will be satisfied and discharged.

If the client relationship is terminated, then the claims that the Parties have against each other shall be finally discharged by means of netting (closed). The value of any open Contracts shall be determined according to the principles set forth below and the final amount to be paid by one of the Parties shall be the difference between the payment obligations of the parties.

19. REPORTS TO THE CLIENT AND PROVISION OF OTHER INFORMATION

The Client consents to receiving all Account information, Trade Confirmations and Account Statements via the Internet and that Orders or instructions given to the Client via e-mail or other electronic means will constitute evidence of the Instructions given. The Client will be able to access all his Account Information via the Company's Online Trading Facility using his own Access Codes. The Client will have access via the Company's Online Trading System to customizable statements that will allow the Client the ability to view, individual Transactions and/or Contracts, daily, weekly, and monthly reports and trade information. The updated Account Information normally will be updated periodically during the company's Dealing Hours and will in any event be available no more than twenty-four (24) hours after activity is generated in your Account.

The posting of these activities will be deemed delivery of Trade Confirmation and Account Activity Statements. The information will include Trade Confirmations with ticket numbers, buy and sale rates, transaction amount, statements of profit and loss, current open positions as well as pending Orders.

If the Client no longer wishes to communicate via electronic media, he must notify the Company and revoke this consent in writing. However, if the Client revokes his consent, then access to the Company's Online Trading Systems may be restricted or terminated, at the Company's sole discretion.

As previously indicated, any such communications being made via electronic media shall be treated as satisfying any legal requirement that a communication should be signed and 'in writing', to the extent permitted by Applicable Laws, Rules and/or Regulations. Furthermore, you hereby waive any rights or requirements under any Applicable Laws, Rules and/or Regulations in any jurisdiction which require an original (non-electronic) signature or delivery or retention of non-electronic records, to the extent permitted under applicable mandatory law.

The Client accepts that when choosing whether to receive the Company's reports as a hard copy or through Online Trading System(s), the Client shall select the latter.

20. CORPORATE ACTIONS AND PROXY VOTING

The Client shall independently track all corporate actions in relation to the securities he holds at the brokerage account with the Company. The Client shall submit instructions to process a particular corporate action (e.g., exercise of rights, dividend distribution/reinvestment) to the Company in timely manner, which is 3 business days before the market deadline. If the Client fails to do so, the Company reserves the right to reject the instruction or process it on best effort basis if accepted.

Given that securities are held in pooled omnibus accounts the Company reserves the right to process corporate actions applicable to such securities in accordance with the selection of majority of the Clients on whose behalf the Company holds the securities. This right shall apply even if the selection contradicts the instruction submitted by any particular Client.

The Company does not provide any proxy voting services. The Company is not obliged to notify of or arrange the attendance of any general meetings and/or arrange the exercise of voting rights applicable to the securities the Company holds on behalf of the Clients.

APPENDIX 5 TO THE BROKERAGE REGULATIONS: ORDER EXECUTION AND ORDER HANDLING POLICY

The Company is operating under the Law of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, as the same may be in force from time to time and modified or amended from time to time.

Under the above legislation, the Company is required to take all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result when executing your orders, taking into account a range of factors. This is referred to as providing you with "best execution". This Policy sets out our approach for carrying out Orders from origination to execution, the execution venues we use and an explanation of how the different factors influence our execution approach, so that we can obtain the best possible result when executing your Orders.

Scope

The Policy forms an integral part of these Terms and Conditions and shall govern the Client's relationship with the Company, including any orders you place with us in respect of the Financial Instruments (or simply "products") we offer. Therefore, by agreeing with these Terms and Conditions, which is a contractually binding agreement between the Client and the Company, the Client is also agreeing to the provisions of this Policy. If there is any inconsistency between this Policy and any other section of these Terms and Conditions, this Policy shall prevail.

General

When dealing with clients, the Company has a general duty to act honestly, fairly, professionally and in the best interest of the Client. In relation to order execution, the Company is required to take all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result when executing client orders or when placing orders with, or transmitting orders to, other entities to execute.

Best Execution Factors

The Company shall take all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible results for its Clients taking into account the following factors when executing Clients' Orders:

(a) Price: The Company's prices can be found on the Company's website or trading platforms. The Company updates its prices as frequently as the limitations of technology and communications links allow. The Company reviews its third party external reference sources from time to time to ensure that the data obtained continues to remain competitive. The Company will not quote any price outside the market hours.

If an order is placed outside the market hours, it will be executed at the market opening. If the price reaches an order limit such as: Stop Loss, Take Profit, Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit or Sell Stop, these orders are instantly executed. However, under certain trading conditions it may be impossible to execute orders (Stop Loss, Take Profit, Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit or Sell Stop) at the Client's requested price. In this case, the Company has the right to execute the order at the first available price. This may occur, for example, at times of rapid price fluctuations, if the price rises or falls in one trading session to such an extent that, under the rules of the relevant exchange, trading is suspended or restricted, or this may occur at the opening of trading sessions. The minimum level for placing Stop Loss, Take Profit, Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit and Sell Stop orders, for a given instrument, if applicable, is specified in the trading platform when an order is placed.

Lime Ltd does not guarantee any order. Placing stops, regardless of the entry or closing designation, does not guarantee that the trade will be filled at the order price. All entry Stops and Stops will be filled, upon activation, at the first/best available market price that may or may not match the requested order price.

(b) Costs: For opening a position in some types of CFDs the Client may be required to pay commission or financing fees, the amount of which is disclosed on the Company's website. Commissions may be charged either in the form of a percentage of the overall value of the trade or as fixed amounts. The commissions for the list of financial instruments can be found on the Company's website and trading platform.

(c) Speed of Execution: Due to the levels of volatility affecting both price and volume, the Company seeks to provide client orders with the fastest execution reasonably possible.

(d) Likelihood of Execution: When the Company transmits Orders for Execution or executes it with another party, execution may be more difficult. The likelihood of execution depends on the availability of prices of other market makers/financial institutions. In some case it may not be possible to arrange an Order for execution, for example but not limited in the following cases: during news times, trading session start moments, during volatile markets where prices may move significantly up or down and away from declared prices, where there is rapid price movement, where there is insufficient liquidity for the execution of the specific volume at the declared price, a force majeure event has occurred. In the event that the Company is unable to proceed with an Order with regard to price or size or other reason, the Order will not be executed. In addition, the Company is entitled, at any time and at its discretion, without giving any notice or explanation to the Client, to decline or refuse to transmit or arrange for the execution of any Order or Request or Instruction of the Client in circumstances explained in the Client Agreement/General Terms and Conditions.

(e) Size of order: The actual minimum size of an order may be different for each type of Client Account. A lot is a unit measuring the transaction amount and it is different for each type of instrument. Please refer to the Company's website and platforms for the value of minimum size of an order instrument type. The Company reserves the right to decline an order as explained in the agreement entered with the Client. Please refer to the Company's trading platform for the value of the maximum volume of the single transaction.

(f) Market Impact: Some factors may rapidly affect the price of the underlying instruments/products from which the Company's quoted price is derived and may also affect other factors listed herein. The Company will take all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result for its Clients.

The Company does not consider the above list exhaustive and the order in which the above factors are presented shall not be taken as priority factor. Nevertheless, whenever there is a specific instruction from the Client, the Company shall make sure that the Client's order shall be executed following the specific instruction.

Clients must bear in mind that the duty of best execution not only relates to price but also involves the consideration of various factors including cost, speed and likelihood of execution and settlement. Even if a trade appears not to have been executed at the best possible price, it does not necessarily constitute a violation of the duty of best execution.

Company's Approach to Best Execution

The Company identifies and seeks to obtain the most favorable terms reasonably available when executing an order on behalf of a client.

To do this, the Company relies on three basic components:

- state-of-the-art technology for routing, monitoring and executing orders;
- careful consideration of the elements of order execution;
- regular and rigorous examination of the overall execution quality.

When executing a buy or sell order, the Company always considers:

- the classification of the client as retail or professional;
- the nature of the client order;
- the characteristics of the financial instruments that are subject to that order

Slippage

Slippage may occur when trading in various instruments. This is the situation when at the time that an Order is presented for execution, the specific price showed to the Client may not be available; therefore the Order will be executed close to or a number of pips away from the Client's requested price. So, Slippage is the difference between the expected price of an Order, and the price the Order is actually executed at. If the execution price is better than the price requested by the Client, this is referred to as positive slippage. If the executed price is worse than the price requested by the Client, this is referred to as negative slippage. Please be advised that Slippage is a normal element when trading in financial instruments. Slippage more often occurs during periods of illiquidity or higher volatility (for example due to news announcements, economic events and market openings and other factors) making an Order at a specific price impossible to execute. In other words, your Orders may not be executed at the declared prices. It is noted that Slippage can occur also during Stop Loss, Take Profit and other types of Orders. The Company does not guarantee the execution of Pending Orders at the price specified. However, the Order will be executed at the next best available market price from the price specified under the Client's pending Order.

The Role of Technology

Typically, the Company uses automated systems to route and execute client orders. Unless otherwise specified in the products description, when Clients' orders are received by the Company, it is automatically executed.

On certain instruments, as published on the Company's website, any open positions held by the Client after the relevant hour as set forth (the "Overnight Hour") which is considered the beginning and end of the trading day are considered to be held overnight, and are subject to overnight fee/credit as explained below. The Client acknowledges that when holding such position open after the Overnight Hour, an overnight fee/credit will be either added or subtracted from the Client's account with respect to such position. The overnight fee/credit amount is a constant fee/percentage of the position value/dollar amount per units and is based on a number of factors including among others, whether the transaction is a buy or a sell, interest rates, the currency in which it is denominated, instrument differentials, daily price fluctuations and other economic and market related factors. The overnight fee/credit for each instrument is displayed on the Company's website www.j2t.global for each specific Instrument on the trading platform. In deciding whether to open a position for a specific Instrument, the Client acknowledges that they are aware of the overnight fee/credit and authorizes the Company to add or subtract such an overnight fee/credit to or from your account.

Types of Order(s) in Trading Financial Instruments

(a) Market Order

A market order is an order to buy or sell a financial instrument at the current market price. Execution of this order results in opening a trade position. Financial instruments are bought at ASK price and sold at BID price. Stop Loss and Take Profit orders can be attached to a market order.

(b) Pending Order

The Company offers the following types of Pending Orders: Buy Limit, Buy Stop, Sell Limit or Sell Stop orders to accounts used to receive and transmit Client Orders in financial instruments for execution. A Pending order is an order that allows the user to buy or sell a financial instrument at a pre-defined price in the future. These Pending Orders are executed once the price reaches the requested level. However, it is noted that under certain trading conditions it may be impossible to execute these Orders at the Client's requested price. In this case, the Company has the right to execute the Order at the first available price. This may occur, for example, at times of rapid price fluctuations of the price, rises or falls in one trading session to such an extent that, under the rules of the relevant exchange, trading is suspended or restricted, or there is lack of liquidity, or this may occur at the opening of trading sessions. It is noted that Stop Loss and Take Profit may be attached to a Pending Order. Also, pending orders are good till cancelled.

(c) Take Profit

Take Profit order is intended for gaining the profit when the financial instrument price has reached a certain level. Execution of this order results in complete closing of the whole position. It is always connected to an open position or a pending order. The order can be requested only together with a market or a pending order. Under this type of order, the Company's trading platform checks long positions with Bid price for meeting of this order provisions (the order is always set above the current Bid price), and it does with Ask price for short positions (the order is always set below the current Ask price).

(d) Stop Loss

This order is used for minimizing of losses if the financial instrument price has started to move in an unprofitable direction. If the financial instrument price reaches this level, the whole position will be closed automatically. Such orders are always connected to an open position or a pending order. They can be requested only together with a market or a pending order. Under this type of orders, the Company's trading platform checks long positions with

Bid price for meeting of this order provisions (the order is always set below the current Bid price), and it does with Ask price for short positions (the order is always set above the current Ask price).

Client's Specific Instruction

The Company will always execute client orders in accordance with the instructions given by that client or on its behalf. Consequently, if a client requires an order to be executed in a particular manner and not in accordance with the Company's best execution principles set forth herein, the client must clearly state his/her desired method of execution when he/she places the order. To the extent that a client instruction is not comprehensive, the Company will determine any non-specified components of the execution in accordance with these best execution principles. Trading rules for specific markets or market conditions may prevent the Company from following certain of the Client's instructions.

Risks of dealing in volatile markets

Clients should be aware of the following risks associated with volatile markets, especially at or near the open or close of the standard trading session:

- Execution at a substantially different price from the quoted bid or offer or the last reported price at the time of order entry, as well as partial executions or execution of large orders in several transactions at different prices.
- Delays in executing orders for financial instruments that the Company must send to external market makers and manually routed or manually executed orders.
- Opening prices that may differ substantially from the previous day's close.
- Locked (the bid equals the offer) and crossed (the bid is higher than the offer) markets, which may prevent the execution of client orders..
- Price volatility is one factor that can affect order execution. When there is a high volume of orders in the market, order imbalances and back logs can occur. This implies that more time is needed to execute the pending orders. Such delays are usually caused by the occurrence of different factors:
 - (i) the number and size of orders to be processed,
 - (ii) the speed at which current quotations (or last-sale information) are provided to the Company and other brokerage firms; and
 - (iii) the system capacity constraints applicable to the given exchange, as well as to the Company and other firms.

Execution of Client Orders

Typically, the Company uses automated systems to route and execute client orders. Upon acceptance of a Client order and when there is no specific Client instruction regarding the execution method, the Company will endeavor to execute that order in accordance with the Best Execution policy. Whenever there is a specific instruction from or on behalf of a Client for the execution of an order, the Company shall arrange – to the extent possible – for the execution of the Client order strictly in accordance with the specific instruction.

It is noted that the specific instruction may prevent the Company from taking the steps described in the Policy to obtain the best possible result for the Client. The Company will satisfy the following conditions when carrying out Client Orders:

- (a) ensure that orders executed on behalf of Clients are promptly and accurately recorded and allocated;
- (b) carry out otherwise comparable Client orders sequentially and promptly unless the characteristics of the order or prevailing market conditions make this impracticable;
- (c) inform its retail Clients about any material difficulty relevant to the proper carrying out of orders promptly upon becoming aware of the difficulty.

For OTC financial instruments (e.g. CFDs) and/or financial instruments whose underlying asset is an OTC financial instrument (such as securities CFDs), the Company may trade route the orders to other firms for execution. Many of these firms also provide automated executions of orders.

The Company may utilize another executing broker, to execute your orders/or and transactions. The Company reserves the right to decline any order or transaction, at any time, given appropriate and justifiable circumstances. Such circumstances shall include:

- Non-compliance of the client with applicable legislation;
- Non-compliance of the client with these Terms and Conditions;
- Insufficient margin to meet necessary margin requirements;
- Reasonably justified suspicion that an order may result in market abuse and/or anti money laundering rules/legislation/framework being violated;
- Rejection by the liquidity providers, execution venues which the Company uses. Such reasons may include any of the above mentioned or any other reason which may not be disclosed to us.

Clients shall be responsible for monitoring all their orders until the Company confirms execution or cancellation of the order. Any order or instruction Clients give to the Company will not take effect unless actually received and acknowledged by the Company. The Company shall be entitled to act upon any order or instruction which it reasonably believes is given by the client or on the client's behalf without further enquiry as to the genuineness, authority or the identity of any such person giving or purporting to give such order or instruction. The execution of an order by the Company shall constitute a binding agreement between the client and the Company on the terms of such executed order. The Company may in accordance with its Order Execution Policy, aggregate the Client's orders with orders of any other clients. Furthermore, the Company may split your orders when executing them in order to achieve better results for the Client.

Best Execution Criteria

The Company will determine the relative importance of the above Best Execution Factors by using its commercial judgement and experience in the light of the information available on the market and taking into account:

- (a) The characteristics of the Client order.
- (b) The characteristics of the Financial Instruments that are the subject of that order.
- (c) The characteristics of the execution venue to which that order is directed.

In view of the above, the Company assigns the following importance level for the above Best Execution Factors:

Factor	Importance Level	Remarks
Price	High	We give strong emphasis on the quality and level of the price data that we receive from authorized external quote providers in order to provide our clients with competitive price quotes. We do not however guarantee that our quoted prices will be at a price which is as good, or better, than one that may be available elsewhere.
Costs	High	We take all sufficient steps to keep the costs of your transactions as low and competitive, to the extent possible.
Speed of Execution	High	Execution speed and the opportunity for price improvement are critical to every trader and we repeatedly monitor these factors to ensure we maintain our high execution standards.
Likelihood of Execution	High	Even though we reserve the right to decline a Client order we aim to effect all Clients' orders, to the extent possible.
Size of order	Medium	See relevant description in Best Execution Factors
Market Impact	Medium	See relevant description in Best Execution Factors

For Retail Clients, the best possible result shall be determined in terms of the total consideration, unless there is a specific instruction from the Client, representing the price of the Financial Instrument and the costs related to execution, which shall include all expenses incurred by the Client which are directly related to the execution of the Order, including execution venue fees, clearing and settlement fees.

The Company publishes information relating to its order execution quality at its website <https://j2t.global/about/disclosures>

Execution Venues

Based on its assessment of the Execution Factors and the Execution Criteria, the Company will select one or more execution venue(s) for the execution of the client's order. Execution Venues used might include:

- Regulated Markets
- Multilateral Trading Facilities
- Other Trading Facilities
- Order Crossing Networks and other electronic platforms
- Other brokers, dealers and market makers

Subject to the above and to any specific instructions that may be given by you, in order to select an Execution Venue for an Order we will use the following methodology:

- (a) When carrying out Orders on a Regulated Market or MTF, we will select the Execution Venue that we consider the most appropriate. The Execution Venue may be the Regulated Market or MTF itself, or a member firm of the Regulated Market or MTF.
- (b) For a Financial Instrument admitted to trading on a Regulated Market or MTF, where we believe that we can trade to your advantage or at no disadvantage to you, we may transmit an Order to, or execute an Order on, an Execution Venue that is outside a Regulated Market or MTF.
- (c) For a Financial Instrument not admitted to trading on a Regulated Market or MTF, we will select the Execution Venue that we consider the most appropriate.

Some Financial Instruments may have only one possible Execution Venue. In carrying out an Order on the Client's behalf in such circumstances, it will be assumed that the Company has achieved best execution.

When executing your order, we will consider all sources of reasonably available information, including Regulated Markets, MTFs, Systematic Internalisers, other liquidity providers, exchanges, brokers and data vendors, to obtain the best possible result for your Order.

The Company publishes the Execution Venues it executes transactions on in its website <https://j2t.global>. Clients accept the obligation to regularly check the list published for any changes. The Company does not provide any other notification of changes in the Execution Venues it uses except for what it publishes in its website.

Execution venue approval process

The Company has a process for the selection of (i) Execution Venues (including brokers), with whom or where it executes client orders, and (ii) brokers, with whom it places or transmits client orders for execution and the Company maintains a list of approved execution venues and brokers (the "Approved List").

The specific qualitative criteria to add an execution venue or broker to the Approved List varies based on the asset class to be traded, but the overall approval process is applied in the same manner across all asset classes. The Company does not conduct any activity with a new execution venue or broker until the screening and approval process has been completed.

The criteria to add an execution venue or broker to the Approved List is generally based on evaluation of a number of quantitative and qualitative factors that may include (as applicable), but are not limited to, the Company's analysis of the broker or execution venue's:

- competitiveness of commission rates or spreads;
- promptness of execution;

- clearance and settlement capabilities;
- quality of service;
- reputation; and
- financial stability

Approved List

The Company mitigates counterparty credit risk by only transacting with counterparties included on the Approved List. For example, for certain transactions, the Company will only transact with counterparties on the Approved list where agreements are in place.

Monitoring of approved execution venues and brokers

All Execution Venues undergo ongoing negative media and sanctions screening (which may include disciplinary actions, criminal proceedings or reputational issues), conducted by the Compliance Officer.

Prohibited practices

With respect to the selection of brokers, the following practices are prohibited:

- trades may not be directed in return for error corrections by a broker;
- trades may not be directed in return for suggested preferential treatment in security offerings or placements;
- trades may not be directed in return for gifts and/or entertainment;
- receipt of third-party payments or benefits save to the extent and the Company provides clients with appropriate information about the benefits that the Company may receive from such third parties;

Aggregation and allocation of Orders

The Company may carry out a client order in aggregation with another client order(s) under the following conditions:

- it must be unlikely that the aggregation of orders and transactions will work overall to the disadvantage of any client whose order is to be aggregated;
- the orders to be aggregated are of the same type (e.g. sales, purchase, exchange, etc)

In case of partial execution of client orders, priority is given to the time of reception of the orders by the Company. The results of partial execution are distributed under the rule that orders submitted earlier are fully executed or executed to the maximum possible extent and orders submitted later are executed partially or not executed at all. In case of partial execution of client orders, the transaction will be allocated proportionally (pro rata) to all clients at the average execution price.

APPENDIX 6 TO THE BROKERAGE REGULATIONS: SUMMARY OF MANAGING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST POLICY

Overview

Under the law of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines the Company is required to maintain and operate effective organizational and administrative arrangements with a view to taking all reasonable steps to prevent conflicts of interest from adversely affecting the interests of its Clients.

Lime Ltd (hereinafter “the Company”) has put in place the necessary policies and procedures to meet its obligations with regards to the identification, prevention and management of conflicts of interest. This Conflict of Interest Management Policy (hereinafter “the Policy”) describes all the measures undertaken by the Company to prevent conflicts of interest from adversely affecting the interests of its clients.

The overarching aim of the Conflicts of Interest Management Policy is to ensure that the Company manages conflicts of interest fairly, both between itself and its customers and between a customer and another client. Confidence in the Company’s integrity to act on behalf of its customers is central to the relationship of trust we have with our customers. This means that when providing services, the Company will always act in the customer’s best interests, putting customers’ interests ahead of its own.

Our Conflicts of Interest Policy is an internal policy document only and it is NOT an integral part of these Terms and Conditions and is not intended to be contractually binding or impose or seek to impose any obligations on us which we would not otherwise have, but for the Law of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines.

Scope and Purpose

The requirement to take all appropriate steps to identify, prevent or manage any conflicts of interest applies to all staff of the Company. The purpose of the Conflicts of Interest Management Policy is to:

- identify circumstances which may give rise to conflicts of interest entailing a risk of damage to customers’ interests;
- describe the arrangements the Company has put in place to prevent or manage such identified conflicts of interest;
- explain the disclosure process the Company will follow for any identified conflict of interest it is unable to manage and which it cannot, with reasonable confidence, adequately protect from causing damage to a client.

What is a conflict of interest?

A conflict of interest is a conflict that arises in the course of the Company providing its customers with a service which may benefit the Company (or another customer for whom the Company is acting) whilst potentially damaging another customer’s interests (where the Company owes a duty to that customer). Potential situations that may give rise to conflicts of interest include where:

- (a) the Company or an employee is likely to make a financial gain, or avoid a financial loss, at the expense of the Client
- (b) the Company or an employee has an interest in the outcome of a service provided to the Client or of a transaction carried out on behalf of the Client, which is distinct from the Client’s interest in that outcome
- (c) the Company or an employee has a financial or other incentive to favor the interest of another Client or group of Clients over the interests of the Client
- (d) the Company or an employee carries on the same business as the Client
- (e) the Company or an employee receives or will receive from a person other than the Client an inducement in relation to a service provided to the Client, in the form of monies, goods or services, other than the standard commission or fee for that service

APPENDIX 10 TO THE BROKERAGE REGULATIONS: MAIN RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH INVESTMENTS IN FINANCIAL MARKETS

Risk Classification of Securities, Money Market Instruments and Derivative Products

The classification of risks is based on general as well as special (product-specific) risks. The general risks inherent in investments in Securities, money market instruments and derivative products to be taken into account are explained on the following pages.

General Investment Risks

Complex Products

1. If you do not understand the key features of the product being offered, or the key risks involved, do not invest. Instead, consider seeking independent professional advice on what investment is suitable for you.
2. Be aware that sometimes the name of a product may not reflect the features of the product.
3. Be careful if you need to access your money before the product is due to pay out.
4. Before you invest, understand what the total costs are. The cost of an investment will impact the return you are likely to achieve. Also, there may be similar, less complex products - with lower costs – available.

Some complex products require a high level of knowledge to evaluate and assess the risks. They also need active management and monitoring over time. Active management and monitoring is often too time consuming, impractical and difficult for retail investors. You should consider these difficulties when thinking about investing in complex products.

Complex products consist of the following:

1. is a derivative, or incorporates a derivative (a derivative is a financial instrument where the value is based on the value of another financial instrument, or of some other underlying financial asset or index, such as foreign currencies or interest rates – they are often included in a financial product to produce or enhance a certain investment strategy, as well as to hedge, or offset, certain risks);
2. has underlying assets or indices that are not easily valued, or whose prices or values are not publicly available;
3. has a fixed investment term with, for example, penalties in case of early withdrawal that are not clearly explained;
4. uses multiple variables or complex mathematical formulas to determine your investment return;
5. includes guarantees or capital protection that are conditional or partial, or that can disappear on the happening of certain events.

Examples of products that should be considered as complex: as-set-backed securities; types of bonds such as convertible or subordinated; certificates; contracts for difference (CFDs); credit linked notes; structured products; and warrants. Although complex products can provide benefits to you, there are certain risks and potential disadvantages involved in investing in complex products. You need to be fully aware of these risks and ensure you sufficiently understand the key features of a product in order to make in-formed investment decisions.

Market risk

Market risk is the day-to-day risk of losses arising from movements in market prices. Complex products can expose you to several market risks because they are often designed to invest in separate underlying markets (for example, in shares, interest rates, exchange rates, commodities).

Cost of complexity

Complex structures within a product can mean the product has a higher cost because you are paying for the product's underlying features. Also, fees and commissions are usually built into the structure of the products, and are therefore not readily apparent.

Currency Risk

In the case of investments in foreign currency, the return and performance of the investment are strongly influenced by the exchange rate development of the foreign currency relative to your base currency. This means that exchange rate fluctuations may increase or decrease the return and value of such investments.

Transfer Risk

Transactions involving a foreign business partner (e.g. a foreign debtor) carry the additional risk that political or exchange control measures in a given country may complicate or prevent the realisation of the investment. In addition, problems may occur in connection with the settlement of an order. In the case of foreign currency transactions, such measures may obstruct the free convertibility of the currency.

Country Risk

The country risk represents the credit risk of a given country. If the country concerned poses a risk in political or economic terms, all counterparties resident in that country may be affected.

Liquidity Risk

Tradability (liquidity) refers to the possibility of selling a security or closing out a position at the market price at any given time. The opposite of a liquid market is a narrow market. The market in a particular security is said to be narrow if an average sell order (measured by the usual trading volume) causes perceptible price fluctuations and if the order cannot be settled at all or only at a substantially lower price.

Credit Risk

Credit risk refers to the possibility of the counterparty's default, i.e. the inability of one party to a transaction to meet its obligations such as dividend payments, interest payments, repayment of principal when due, or to meet such obligations for full value. It is also known as repayment risk or issuer risk.

Interest Rate Risk

The risk that losses will be incurred as a result of future movements in the market interest level is termed interest rate risk.

Exchange Risk

This term means the risk of adverse movements in the value of individual investments. In the case of transactions implying a future obligation (foreign currency forwards, futures, selling options etc.) it may therefore be necessary to provide collateral security (margin) or to increase its amount, which means tying up liquidity.

Risk of Total Loss

This term refers to the risk that an investment may become completely worthless.

Buying Securities on Credit

The purchase of Securities on credit implies an increased risk. The credit raised must be repaid no matter whether the investment has been profitable or not. Furthermore, the credit costs reduce the return.

Placing Orders

Buy or sell orders must at least indicate the designation of the investment, the quantity (number of Securities/nominal amount) to be purchased or sold, the price at which the transaction is to be carried out and the period for which the order is to be valid.

Price Limit

If buy or sell orders are placed with the instruction "at best" (no price limit), deals will be executed at the best possible price. With a buy limit, the purchase price and thus the amount of capital employed is limited. No purchases will be made above the price limit. A sales limit fixes the lowest acceptable selling price; no deals will be carried out below this price limit.

Time Limit

Setting a time limit determines the validity period of orders. The validity of unlimited orders depends on the practices of the respective stock market. Your investment adviser will inform you of further additions which can be made when placing an order.

Tax Considerations

Your investment adviser will inform you about the general tax aspects of the individual investment instruments. We advise you to assess the impact of an investment on your personal tax bill together with your tax consultant.

Investment Risks Related To Bonds/Debentures / Fixed-Income Securities

Bonds

(= debentures, fixed-income Securities) are Securities that obligate the issuer (= debtor) to pay to the holder (= creditor, buyer) interest on the capital invested and to repay the nominal amount according to the bond terms.

Return

The bond yield is composed of the interest paid on the capital and any difference between the purchase price and the price achievable upon sale/redemption of the bond.

Consequently, the return can be determined in advance only if the bond is held until redemption. To provide an indication/comparison, an annual yield based on the assumption of bullet repayment is calculated in line with international standards. If the yield of a bond is significantly above the general yield level of bonds with comparable maturities, there good reasons must exist - one of them may be an increased credit risk.

The price achievable upon sale of a bond prior to redemption (market price) is not known in advance. This means that the yield may be higher or lower than initially calculated. In addition, transaction charges must be taken into account when calculating the overall return.

Credit Risk

There always is the risk of the counterparty's default, e.g. in the case of the debtor's insolvency. The credit standing of the debtor must therefore be considered in an investment decision.

Credit ratings (assessment of the creditworthiness of a debtor) issued by independent rating agencies provide some guidance in this respect. The highest creditworthiness is "AAA". The lower the rating (e.g. "B" or "C") is, the higher is the repayment risk, but also the higher will be the yield (risk premium).

Exchange Risk

If a bond is kept until maturity, the investor will receive the redemption price as stated in the bond terms. Please bear in mind the risk of a call, i.e. the issuer retires the bond before maturity (this is only possible if a relevant provision is specified in the bond terms).

If a bond is sold prior to maturity, the investor will receive the current market price, which is regulated by supply and demand. For instance, the price of fixed-rate Securities will fall if the interest rate on bonds with comparable maturities rises. Conversely, bonds will gain in value if the interest rate on bonds with comparable maturities falls. The market price of a bond may also be affected if the issuer's creditworthiness changes.

Liquidity Risk

The tradability of bonds depends on several factors, e.g. issuing volume, residual life, bond market rules and market conditions. Certain bonds may be difficult or impossible to sell and must be held until maturity.

Bond Trading

Bonds are traded on a stock exchange or over-the-counter. Company may quote buying and selling rates for bonds upon request.

Some Special Bonds

Supplementary capital bonds

These are junior Securities issued by certain banks. Interest will be paid only if the bank has achieved a sufficient net income (before allocation to reserves) for the financial year, and principal will be repaid only after pro-rata deduction of the net losses suffered during the full term of the supplementary capital bonds.

Subordinated capital bonds

In the event of an issuer's liquidation or bankruptcy, payments are made to the holder of these bonds only after all other non-subordinated liabilities of the bond debtor had been satisfied. It is not possible to offset claims to redemption of subordinated bonds against amounts owed to the bond debtor.

Cash-or-share bonds issues

These consist of three components, the risk of which is borne by the holder of these bonds: The investor buys bonds (bond component) whose interest rate takes into account the option premium and is higher than the market interest rate of other bond issues with comparable maturities.

However, the bonds will be redeemed either in cash or in shares, depending on the price performance of the underlying share (share component). Thus, the bondholder is the writer of a put option (option component), who sells the right to put shares to him/her to a third party and, thereby, accepts the risk of an adverse movement in the share. In return for accepting the risk, he/she will receive the option premium, which is determined chiefly by the volatility of the share. Unless the bonds are held until maturity, there will be the additional risk of interest rate fluctuations. Changes in the interest rate level will thus affect the price of the bonds and, consequently, their net yield relative to the holding period.

Please note the information on the credit risk, interest rate risk, and exchange risk of the share given in this brochure.

Your personal adviser will be pleased to inform you about further special bond types such as bonds with warrants, convertible bonds, zero-coupon bonds etc.

Investment Risks Related To Shares

Shares

Shares (stocks, equities) are Securities evidencing an ownership interest held in an enterprise (public limited company). The most important rights of shareholders are the participation in the company's profits and the right to vote in the shareholders' meeting.

Return

The yield on investments in shares is composed of dividend payments as well as price gains or losses and cannot be predicted with certainty. The dividend is the amount of a company's earnings distributed to shareholders. The amount of the dividend is decided by the shareholders' meeting and is expressed either as an absolute amount per share or as a percentage of the nominal value of the share. The return achieved on the dividend in relation to the share price is called dividend yield. Usually, this is considerably lower than the dividend quoted as a percentage of the nominal value. The greater part of the return on investments in shares is usually achieved from their performance/price trend (see exchange risk).

Exchange Risk

Most stocks are traded on a public exchange. As a rule, prices are established on the basis of supply and demand daily. Investment in stocks may involve considerable losses.

In general, the price of a stock depends on the business trend of the respective company as well as the general business environment and political conditions. Besides, irrational factors (investor sentiment, public opinion) may also influence the share price trend and thus the return. Statistics show that, in the past, investments in stocks provided higher overall returns in the medium and long term than investments in most other Securities categories.

Credit Risk

Shareholders hold an ownership interest in a company. This means that their investments may be rendered worthless, especially if the company becomes insolvent.

Liquidity Risk

Tradability may be limited in the case of shares with a narrow market (especially stocks quoted on the so-called "third market").

Stock Trading

Stocks are traded on a public exchange and sometimes over-the-counter. In the case of stock exchange trading, the relevant stock exchange rules (trading lots, order types, contract settlement etc.) must be observed. Foreign shares quoted in EURO are still subject to a currency risk, in addition to the exchange risk if their local stock exchanges are in countries which are not members of European Monetary Union. Please contact your personal adviser for further details.

Investment Risks Related To Investment Funds

Shares in Investment Funds

(= investment Fund certificates) are Securities which evidence co-ownership of an investment Fund. Investment Funds invest the money provided by investors in accordance with the principle of risk diversification. There are three basic types of investment Funds: bond Funds, stock (equity) Funds and balanced Funds, which invest in both bonds and stocks. Funds may invest in European and/or third country Securities.

Besides, funds are categorised as interest/dividend paying Funds, growth Funds, and funds of Funds. In contrast to interest/dividend-paying funds, a growth fund does not pay out its income but reinvests it in the Fund. Funds of Funds invest in other European and/or third country Funds.

Open-End Investment Funds

Return

These consist of open-end and closed-end Funds. The return on investment Fund certificates is composed of the annual distributions (in the case of interest/dividend-paying Funds, not of growth Funds) and the trend of the net asset value (NAV). The return on investment cannot be established in advance. NAV performance depends on the investment policy specified in the Fund terms as well as on the market trends of the individual Securities held by the Fund. Depending on the composition of a Fund's portfolio, the relevant risk-warning notices for bonds, stocks or warrants must be taken into account.

Exchange/rating risk

Investment Fund certificates can normally be resold to the Fund at the repurchase price at any time. Under exceptional circumstances, the repurchase of certificates can be temporarily suspended until Fund assets have been sold and the sales proceeds received. Your investment adviser will be pleased to inform you about any charges and the execution date of your buy and sell orders. The life of an investment Fund is set down in the Fund's terms and is usually unlimited. Please keep in mind that investment Fund certificates, unlike bonds, are not normally redeemed and, consequently, do not carry a fixed redemption price. The risk of investment Fund certificates depends, as already mentioned, on the Fund's stated investment policy and the market trends. A loss cannot be ruled out. Although investment Fund certificates can normally be resold at any time, in practice they are a profitable investment only if kept over a longer period of time (a minimum of three years with the exception of money market Funds).

Tax considerations

The tax treatment of returns on investment funds may vary according to the type of investment Fund. Detailed information is provided in the respective Fund's periodic reports.

Investment Companies (closed-end)

Investment companies are governed by separate legal provisions. The rules for supervision are in many cases less strict than the ones for investment Funds.

In certain countries, there may also be closed-end funds and Funds ruled by corporate law, whose prices are determined by supply and demand rather than by the intrinsic value of the Fund, which is roughly comparable to the way stock prices are formed.

Regardless of their legal form, the income distributed by investment companies or, in the case of reinvestment Funds, the income equivalent to dividend payments is subject to other tax regulations than income distributed by investment Funds.

Please note that interest/dividend payments and income equivalent to interest/dividend payments (e.g. reinvestment Funds) of third country investment Funds- irrespective of their legal form - are subject to different tax regulations.

Investment Risks Related To Warrants

Warrants

Are interest- and dividend-free Securities, granting the holder the right to buy (call warrants) or sell (put warrants) a certain underlying Security (e.g. shares) at a predetermined price (exercise price).

Return

The buyer of a call warrant has locked in the purchase price of the underlying Security. A return can be achieved if the market price of the underlying Security exceeds the agreed exercise price to be paid by the investor (the purchase price of the warrant has to be deducted). Then, the warrant holder can buy the underlying Security at the strike price and sell it immediately at the ruling market price.

An increase in the price of the underlying Security will usually lead to a proportionately higher percentage increase in the warrant price (leverage effect). Consequently, most warrant holders achieve a return by selling warrants.

The same applies, in the opposite direction, to put warrants. These usually rise in value if the price of the underlying Security decreases. The return on warrant transactions cannot be established in advance.

Exchange Risk

The risk inherent in warrant transactions is the possibility that, between purchase and expiry of the warrant, the underlying Security performs differently than expected at the time of purchase. In the worst case, this may involve the complete loss of the invested capital. The price of a warrant is also influenced by other factors. The most important are:

- volatility of the underlying Security (a measure of the fluctuation margin anticipated at the time of purchase and, simultaneously, the most important parameter for determining the fairness of the warrant price)
- residual life of the warrant.

Consequently, the price of a warrant may remain unchanged or fall, even though the price trend of the underlying Security has moved in line with the investor's expectation. We generally advise against the purchase of warrants which are close to expiry. Buying warrants with high volatility makes your investment more expensive and is highly speculative, as is the purchase of warrants with strong leverage.

Liquidity Risk

Warrants are usually issued only in small numbers, which increases the liquidity risk for investors. For this reason, individual warrants may be subject to particularly sharp price fluctuations.

Warrant Trading

Warrants are traded on stock exchanges as well as over-the-counter (OTC). In many cases, there are differences in bid and ask prices between warrants traded on stock exchanges and warrants traded OTC.

Warrant Terms

Warrants do not have standardised terms, therefore, it is imperative that full information on the exact terms and conditions of a warrant is gathered, in particular:

Method of exercise

Is the warrant exercisable at any time during its life (American-style option) or only at expiry (European-style option)?

Subscription ratio

How many warrants are needed to obtain the underlying Security?

Exercise

Delivery of the underlying Security or cash settlement?

Expiry

When does the option right expire? Please note that your bank will not exercise your option without your explicit instruction.

Investment Risks Related to Money Market Instruments

MONEY MARKET INSTRUMENTS – BRIEFLY EXPLAINED
Certificates of deposit	Money market instruments with terms of usually 30 - 360 days, issued by banks.
Deposit Funds	Money market instruments with a term of up to five years, issued by banks.
Federal government bonds	Money market instruments with a term of six months to five years (maximum), issued by the Federal Ministry of Finance.
Commercial papers	Money market instruments, short-term debt instruments with maturities ranging from five to 270 days, issued by large companies.
Notes	Short-term capital money market instruments with maturities ranging from one to five years.

These include investments and borrowings evidenced by a certificate such as certificates of deposits, deposit Funds, government bonds, global note facilities, commercial papers as well as all notes with a maturity of up to five years for the repayment of principal and fixed interest rates for up to about one year.

Return and Risk Components

The return and risk components of money market instruments are largely equivalent to those of bonds/debentures/fixed-income Securities. Differences exist mainly in the liquidity risk.

Liquidity Risk

Typically, there are no organised Secondary markets for money market instruments. For this reason, there is no guarantee that the instruments can be sold at any time.

The liquidity risk is diminished if the issuer guarantees the repayment of the invested capital at any given time and if the issuer's credit standing is satisfactory.

Investment Risks Related to Forward Transactions in Securities (Options And Futures Contracts)

Options and futures transactions offer the opportunity to make big profits, but, at the same time involve the risk of substantial losses. As your Investment Firm, we consider it our duty to familiarise you with the risks involved before you close such deals.

Buying Options

This refers to the purchase (= buy to open a long position) of call options or put options, whereby you acquire the right to receive or sell the underlying instruments, or - if this is not possible, as in the case of index options - the right to receive an amount of money equivalent to the positive balance between the strike price and the market price at exercise. In the case of American-style options, this right may be exercised at any time until maturity, in the case of European-style only at maturity. In return for acquiring this right, you pay the option premium. If the price of the underlying instrument moves contrary to your expectations, your right may decline in value and may even become worthless at maturity. Thus, your loss potential consists in the premium paid for the option.

Selling (writing) call options

This implies the sale (= sell to open a short position) of call options, whereby you undertake to deliver the underlying instruments at the strike price at any time until maturity (in the case of American-style call options) or at maturity (in the case of European-style call options). In return for this obligation, you receive the option premium. If the price of the underlying instruments increases, you may have to deliver them at a time when the market price is considerably higher than the strike price. Your loss potential consists in this difference, which cannot be predetermined and, basically, may be unlimited. If you do not possess the underlying instruments (uncovered short position) when the option is exercised, you will have to buy them in the market for delivery (short covering), which means that your risk of loss cannot be predetermined. If you possess the underlying instruments, you do not risk having to cover a short position and you can deliver them promptly. However, as the instruments in question must remain blocked during the lifetime of your option, you cannot sell them during this period and, consequently, cannot avoid losses by selling these instruments in the case of falling prices.

Selling (writing) put options

This implies the sale (= sell to open a short position) of put options, whereby you undertake to buy the underlying instruments at the strike price at any time until maturity (in the case of American-style put options) or at maturity (in the case of European-style put options). In return for this obligation, you receive the option premium. If the price of the underlying instruments falls, you may have to buy them at a time when the market price is considerably lower than the strike price. Your loss potential consists in this difference, which cannot be predetermined and, basically, may be unlimited. In this case, an immediate selling of these instruments will involve a loss. However, if you do not wish to sell them right away but prefer to keep them, you must take into account the funds required for their acquisition.

Purchase and Sale of Futures Contracts

This implies the obligation to buy or sell the underlying Securities at a fixed price (delivery price) at a pre-agreed date (delivery date). If prices increase, you may have to deliver - as agreed - the underlying instruments at a time when the delivery price is considerably lower than the market price. Conversely, if prices decrease, you have to buy - as agreed - the underlying instruments on delivery date at delivery price even if their market price is considerably lower. This difference represents your loss potential. If you have undertaken to buy the underlying instruments, the full amount of money necessary to buy them must be available in cash at maturity. If you have undertaken to deliver but do not possess the underlying instruments (uncovered short position), you have to buy them in the market at maturity (short covering), which means that your risk cannot be predetermined. If you possess the underlying instruments, you do not risk having to cover a short position and you can deliver them promptly.

Cash Settlement

If the delivery or purchase of the underlying Securities is not possible (e.g. in the case of index options or index futures) you will have to pay - if your market expectations have not been met - an amount of money equivalent to the difference between the strike price of the option or the delivery price of the futures contract and the market price at exercise of the option or at delivery date of the futures contract. This difference represents your loss potential, which cannot be predetermined and, basically, may be unlimited. Furthermore, you have to ensure sufficient liquidity to settle this transaction.

Margins

Writing uncovered options (= sell to open an uncovered short position) or buying or selling futures requires the provision of collateral Securities, the so-called margins. Margins have to be provided both when positions are opened and throughout the lifetime of the options or futures contract. If you are unable to meet a margin call, a sub broker which provides the margin service will be obliged to close open positions immediately and to use the margin already provided to settle such positions.

Closing of Positions

You are allowed to close your options and futures positions before their respective expiry, but you must not rely on this possibility being at hand at any time. To a high degree, it depends on market conditions, and if the market is in poor shape, trades may be possible only at unfavourable prices. This, in turn, may result in losses.

Other Risks

Options embody rights as well as obligations – futures contracts contain obligations only - with short-term maturities and standardised expiry and delivery dates. These aspects, together with the promptness of these kinds of transactions, imply the following additional risks, in particular:

- Options which have not been exercised or closed before maturity expire and thus become worthless.
- If margin calls are not met in time, a subbroker which provides the margin service will close your position and use the margins provided until such date, notwithstanding your obligation to cover outstanding balances.
- If you have written an option and underlying instruments are to be put to you, we will take the necessary steps on your behalf without any previous notice. Instruments put to you under an exercised put option will be sold by us in the case of insufficient cover.

- If you trade futures contracts in foreign currencies, adverse trends in the foreign exchange markets may increase your risk.

We will provide you with any information you may require in connection with your options and futures transactions - at your request, also by telephone. However, we have to decline any responsibility for any lack of possibility to provide such information and for losses resulting there from. Being actively engaged in the trading of options and futures, you should bear the above-mentioned risks in mind and make due allowance for them at all times.

Exotic OTC Options

Normally all the OTC options risks apply to Exotic OTC options, but there are some twists.

Barrier options (knock out options)

Type of path dependent OTC option, where the option to exercise depends on the underlying crossing or reaching a given barrier level. It is possible to buy the barrier and pay less premium than the vanilla option.

Example

A European call option may be written on an underlying with spot price of $100, and a knockout barrier of $120 - if the spot price ever moves above $120, the option "knocks out" and the contract is null and void. Note that the option does not reactivate if the spot price falls below $120 again.

Return

The call option holder will make a profit if the price of the underlying instrument rises above the strike price, but it keeps below a given barrier level. The put option holder will make a profit if the spot price moves down the strike price, but it keeps above a given barrier level. The option writer receives a premium, which can be his/her return if the option is not exercised by the holder or "knocks out".

Special Risks of Barrier Option Agreements

The option holder runs the risk of deactivating the option if the barrier is crossed.

Asian options (average options)

Strongly path dependent OTC options; are based on the average price of the underlying asset over a certain period of time as opposed to at maturity. The average can be either the Arithmetic Average (i.e. the standard mean) or the Geometric Average (which is the mean when assuming all price moves are in percentages not absolute values).

Return

The option holder will make a profit if the average price of the underlying asset over a certain period of time becomes above the strike price (call option) or moves down the strike price (put option).

The option writer receives a premium, which can be his/her return if the option is not exercised by the holder, but this type of option contract tends to cost less than regular American option.

Special Risks of Asian Option Agreements

An Asian option can protect investors from the volatility risk that comes with the market.

Binary options (all-or-nothing options or digital options)

A binary option is a type of option where the payoff is either some fixed amount of some asset or nothing at all. Thus, the options are binary in nature because there are only two possible outcomes.

Example

Investor buys a binary cash-or-nothing call option with strike price of $100 with a binary payoff of $1000. Then if at the future maturity date, the stock is trading at or above $100, he/she receives $1000. If its stock is trading below $100, he/she receives nothing.

Return

The option holder will make a profit (fixed amount) if the price of the underlying instrument rises above the strike price at the maturity (call option) or moves down the strike price (put option). The option writer receives a premium, which can be his/her return if the option is not exercised by the holder.

Special Risks of Binary Option Agreements

Both counterparties can calculate their risks, because both premium and potential payment are beforehand well-known.

Lookback options (hindsight options)

Type of path-dependent option where the payoff is dependent on the maximum or minimum asset price over the life of the option. They generally come in two distinct forms:

Fixed Strike - the strike is predetermined at inception and the payoff is the maximum difference between the optimal price and the strike price.

Floating Strike - the strike is given as the optimal value of the underlying asset.

Return

The option holder can 'look back' over time and is able to get the best possible return from an option. In the case of a call, the buyer will choose the lowest price, and in the case of a put, the buyer will choose the highest price (see below for formulae of calculating return). The option writer receives a premium, which can be his/her return if the option is not exercised by the holder. The premium on such options tends to be high since it gives the buyer great flexibility, and the writer has to take on a lot of risk.

Special Risks of Lookback Option Agreements

There are no risks for the option holder, because this option will always be exercised. The option writer runs the highest possible risk.

$$c_{fixed} = \max(0, S_{max} - K)$$

$$c_{float} = \max(0, S - S_{min})$$

Opportunities And Risks In Treasury Transactions

The classification of risks is based on general as well as special (product-specific) risks. The general risks inherent in investments in Securities, money market instruments and derivative products to be taken into account are explained on the following pages.

Foreign Exchange Forward Contracts

A foreign exchange forward contract is the firm undertaking to buy or sell a certain amount in a foreign currency at a specified date in the future or during a specified period of time at a price agreed upon conclusion of the contract. Delivery and receipt of the counter currency take place at the same value. Detailed data about the Company's Forward Contracts Trading Regulations Realized through "MetaTrader" trading system adopted by Lime Ltd and also necessary data and information for the Client are posted by the Company on the Internet at <https://j2t.global>, Section "Fees & Commissions".

Return

The return (profit/loss) to be achieved by speculative users of foreign exchange forward contracts is the difference between the exchange rates at a given time during the term or at maturity of the forward operation, according to the contract specifications. The use of foreign exchange forward contracts for hedging purposes means that an exchange rate is locked in so that the cost of and return on the hedged transaction will neither increase nor decrease as a result of any exchange rate fluctuations.

Currency Risk

The currency risk inherent in foreign exchange forward contracts is, in the case of hedging transactions, the possibility that the buyer/seller could buy/sell the foreign currency at a more favourable price during the term or at maturity or, in the case of unmatched positions, the possibility that the buyer/seller must buy/sell the currency at a less favourable price than the price fixed in the contract. The potential loss may substantially exceed the original contract value.

Credit Risk

The credit risk in connection with foreign exchange forward contracts consists in the possibility of the counterparty's default due to insolvency, i.e. one party's temporary or permanent inability to fulfil the foreign exchange forward contract, making more expensive covering transactions in the market necessary.

Transfer Risk

In the case of individual foreign currencies, the possibilities of transfer may be restricted, in particular as a result of exchange-control regulations imposed by the country issuing that currency. The due and proper execution of the foreign exchange forward contract would then be at risk.

Foreign Currency Swaps

A currency swap is the exchange of two currencies over a specified period of time. The interest rate differential between the two currencies is reflected in a premium/discount to the re-exchange rate. Delivery and receipt of the counter currency take place at the same value.

Return

The return (profit/loss) for the user of foreign currency swaps results from the positive/negative development of the interest rate differential and may be achieved in the course of a counter transaction during the maturity of the currency swap.

Credit Risk

The credit risk in connection with currency swaps consists in the possibility of the counterparty's default due to insolvency, i.e. one party's temporary or permanent inability to complete the currency swap, making more expensive covering transactions in the market necessary.

Transfer Risk

In the case of individual foreign currencies, the possibilities of transfer may be restricted, in particular as a result of exchange-control regulations imposed by the country issuing that currency. The due and proper execution of the foreign currency swap would then be at risk.

Interest Rate Swaps (IRS)

An interest rate swap regulates the exchange between two parties of interest obligations at different rates in respect of a notional principal amount. As a rule, fixed interest rates are exchanged for variable ones. Both payment streams are denominated in the same currency and relate to the same principal amount. This means that only interest payments are swapped, whereas no flow of capital takes place.

Return

The buyer of an interest rate swap, who pays a interest rate, benefits from a rise in market interest rates.
The seller of an interest rate swap, who receives a fixed interest rate, benefits from a fall in market interest rates.

The return on an interest rate swap cannot be determined in advance.

Interest Rate Risk

The interest rate risk results from the uncertainty as to future changes in market interest rates. The buyer/seller of an interest rate swap incurs a loss if interest rates fall/rise.

Credit Risk

The credit risk for the buyer of an interest rate swap consists in the possibility of the counterparty's default, making more expensive covering transactions in the market necessary.

Special Features of Interest Rate Swaps

Interest rate swaps do not have standardised terms, they are customised products. Therefore, it is imperative that full information on the exact terms and conditions of interest rate swaps is gathered, in particular on:

2. principal (notional) amount
3. term (maturity)
4. interest rates agreed.

Forward Rate Agreements (FRA)

Forward rate agreements are used to lock in interest rates to be paid in future interest periods. Since forward rate agreements are traded on the inter-bank market and not on exchanges, they do not have standardised terms. Unlike the closely related interest rate futures, forward rate agreements are customised products in terms of principal (notional) amount, currency and interest period.

Return

By buying/selling a forward rate agreement, the buyer/seller has fixed the interest rate. If the reference interest rate is higher than the agreed interest rate (price of forward rate agreement) on the date of maturity, the buyer of the FRA will be compensated for the movement in interest rates. If the reference rate is lower than the agreed interest rate on the date of maturity, the seller of the FRA will receive a compensation payment.

Interest Rate Risk

The interest rate risk results from the uncertainty as to future changes in interest rates. The general rule is: the more pronounced the increase/decrease in interest rates is, the higher is the risk.

Credit Risk

The credit risk in connection with buying forward rate agreements derives from the possibility of the counterparty's default, making more expensive covering transactions in the market necessary.

Special Features of Forward Rate Agreements

Forward rate agreements do not have standardised terms, but they are customised products. Therefore, it is imperative that full information on the exact terms and conditions of the contract is gathered, in particular on:

2. principal (notional) amount
3. term (maturity)
4. interest rates agreed

Interest Rate Futures

Interest rate futures are exchange-traded forward contracts on short-term investments, money market or capital market instruments with standardised maturities and contract sizes. This means that the yield on a deposit can be fixed in advance by means of an interest rate future.

Return

The return (profit/loss) achievable by the speculative user results from the interest rate or price differentials at maturity of the transactions and those stipulated in the contract. Using interest rate futures for hedging purposes reduces the financial risk of existing or future positions.

Interest Rate Risk

The value of an interest rate future primarily depends on the yield trend of the underlying instrument. The buyer's exposure is therefore comparable to that of a holder of the underlying instrument. The risk results from the uncertainty as to future changes in the market interest level.

The interest rate risk taken by the buyer/seller of a futures contract consists in the potential obligation to put up further margin or to complete the deal at maturity if market interest rates rise/fall. The general rule is: the more pronounced the increase/decrease in current market interest rates is, the higher is the risk. The resulting potential of loss may be many times higher than the original capital invested (initial margin).

Liquidity Risk

In some markets, the closing out of futures positions (sale/repurchase of contracts) may lead to heavy adverse price movements in the case of either excessive supply or excessive demand.

Over-The-Counter Options (OTC)

The buyer of an option acquires the right (valid for a limited period of time) to buy (call option) or to sell (put option) the underlying instrument (e.g. securities, currencies etc.) at a fixed (strike) price or (as is the case with interest rate options) to receive a compensation payment resulting from a positive difference between the strike price and the market value at the time the option is exercised.

Writing an option (opening) obligates the option writer (seller) to fulfil the rights of the option buyer. Options may differ according to the style of exercise: an American-style option is exercisable at any time up to the expiry date, whereas a European style option may be exercised only at expiry.

Return

The buyer (holder) of an option will make a profit if the price of the underlying instrument rises above the strike price (in the case of a call option) or falls below the strike price (in the case of a put option). The option holder may either exercise the option or sell it. The option writer (seller) receives a premium in return for granting this right. His/her return will be the premium if the option is not exercised by the holder.

General Risks

The value (price) of an option is determined by the strike price, the performance and the volatility of the underlying instrument, the option's life, the level of interest rates and the market situation. In the worst case, therefore, the capital invested (option premium) may become completely worthless. If the price of the underlying instrument moves contrary to the expectation of the option writer, the potential loss can be virtually unlimited. It is important to note that options not exercised on or before the expiry date cease to exist as financial instruments and will be taken off the books. Please note that the Company will not exercise your option without your explicit instruction!

Special Risks of OTC Option Agreements

As a rule, OTC options do not have standardised terms, but, predominantly, they are customised investments. Therefore, it is imperative that full information on the exact terms and conditions (style of exercise, exercise, expiry etc.) is gathered. The credit risk taken by the buyer of an OTC option derives from the possibility of losing the premium due to the counterparty's default, which would indirectly make more expensive covering transactions in the market necessary. Being customised products, over-the-counter options are usually not traded on organised (Secondary) markets. Consequently, no guarantee can be given that such options are tradable at any time.

Foreign Currency Options

The buyer of a foreign currency option acquires the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell a fixed amount of a foreign currency at a predetermined price at a predetermined date in the future or within a predetermined period of time. The seller (writer) of the option grants this right to the buyer. In exchange for this right, the buyer pays the seller a premium. The following possibilities exist:

1. The buyer of a call option acquires the right to buy a fixed amount of a specified currency at a predetermined price (exercise or strike price) on or before a specified date (delivery date).
2. The seller of a call option undertakes to deliver/ sell, at the option holder's request, a fixed amount in a particular currency at the agreed strike price on or before a specified date.
3. The buyer of a put option acquires the right to sell a fixed amount of a specified currency at a predetermined price (exercise or strike price) on or before a specified date (expiry date).
4. The seller of a put option undertakes to buy, at the option holder's request, a fixed amount in a specified currency at the agreed strike price on or before a specified date.

Return

The buyer of a call option will make a profit if the market price of the currency rises above the agreed strike price (the purchase price of the option – the option premium - must be deducted from this profit). Then, the option holder may buy the foreign currency at the strike price and re-sell it immediately at the market price.

The call option writer receives a premium in exchange for selling the option. The same applies, in the opposite direction, to put options, which are purchased in the expectation of falling foreign currency rates.

Risks Attached to the Purchase Of Options

Risk of total loss

The buyer (holder) of an option runs the risk of losing the full amount of the premium. This happens if the option holder does not exercise the option, for example, considering the prevailing market conditions.

Credit risk

The credit risk in connection with the purchase of foreign currency options results from the possibility of the counterparty's default. This would involve the loss of the premium already paid and thus indirectly the need to make more expensive covering transactions in the market.

Currency risk

The currency risk results from the possibility that the exchange rate of the relevant currency may develop differently during the life of the option than you expected when buying the option. In the worst case, the invested capital may be completely lost.

Risks Attached to the Sale of Options

Currency risk

The currency risk results from the possibility that the exchange rate of the relevant currency may develop differently during the life of the option than you expected when selling the option. The resulting risk of loss is virtually unlimited for option writers.

The premium (pricing) of a currency option is determined by the following factors:

- (g) volatility of the underlying currency (measure of the expected fluctuation margin of the exchange rate)
- (h) agreed strike price
- (i) life of the option
- (j) prevailing exchange rate
- (k) interest rate levels of both currencies

Transfer risk

In the case of individual foreign currencies, the possibilities of transfer may be restricted, in particular as a result of exchange-control regulations imposed by the country issuing that currency. The due and proper execution of the foreign currency option would then be at risk.

Liquidity risk

Being largely customised products, there usually are no organised Secondary markets for currency options. Consequently, it cannot be guaranteed that a currency option can be readily sold.

Special Features of Currency Options

Currency options do not have standardised terms. Therefore, it is imperative that full information on the exact terms and conditions of the option is gathered, in particular:

Style of exercise

Is the option exercisable at any time during its life (American option) or only at expiry (European option)?

Expiry

When does the option expire? Please note that your Company will not exercise your option without your explicit instruction!

Interest Rate Options

Interest rate options are agreements on cap or floor interest rates. They are used either:

- (d) for hedging purposes or
- (e) for speculative trading to realise a gain.

Interest rate options are either calls or puts. There are also a number of widely used special variants, for example, caps, floors, swaptions etc.

By buying a call option, the buyer locks in an interest rate cap (= strike price) for future borrowings. In speculative trading, the value of a call option goes up on rising interest rates.

The sale of a call option can be used as a speculative instrument only. The seller receives the premium and undertakes to compensate the buyer for any difference in interest rates.

Put options guarantee the buyer a certain minimum return on a future investment. In speculative trading, the value of a put option increases on falling interest rates.

Caps and floors are series of successive interest rate calls or puts. They can be used for:

1. Hedging purposes

Depending on the agreed reference periods, the current three-month or six-month interest rate is compared with the agreed strike price every three or six months. If the market rate is higher than the strike price, the holder of the cap will be compensated for the difference.

2. Speculative trading to realise a gain

The value of a cap increases along with rising interest rates. In this case, however, the forward rates (future interest rates traded for delivery a later time) are the decisive factor, not the current interest rates.

The same applies, in the opposite direction, to the purchase/sale of a floor. The buyer secures a floor interest rate for himself/herself, while the seller holds a speculative position.

A swaption is an option on an interest rate swap (interest rate swap = agreement to exchange interest obligations). There are two basic types of swaptions: call swaptions (the right to pay fixed interest rates) and put swaptions (the right to receive fixed interest rates). Both variants can either be bought or sold.

Swaptions can be settled in two different ways with different risk profiles attached:

Swaption with swap settlement

The buyer enters into a swap agreement upon exercising the swaption:

- (d) The buyer of a call swaption acquires the right to make fixed interest payments at the strike price on a notional amount on the delivery date and to receive variable interest payments in return.
- (e) The seller of a call swaption undertakes to receive fixed interest payments at the agreed strike price on a notional amount on the delivery date and to make variable interest payments in return.
- (f) The buyer of a put swaption acquires the right to receive fixed interest payments at the agreed strike price on a notional principal amount on the delivery date and to make variable interest payments in return.
- (g) The seller of a put swaption undertakes to make fixed interest payments at the agreed strike price on a notional principal amount on the delivery date and to receive variable interest payments in return.

Swaption with cash settlement

When exercising the swaption, the buyer will receive the difference between the cash values of the swaps at the interest rate agreed upon in the swaption and the current market interest rate.

Return

The holder of an interest rate option will realise a gain if on exercise date the market interest rate is higher than the strike price of the call or lower than the strike price of the put. In the case of swaptions, a return can be achieved if on exercise date the market interest rate is above the agreed strike price (with call swaptions) or below the agreed strike price (with put swaptions). In any case, the premium paid must be deducted from the return. The seller of an interest rate option will receive a premium. This will represent his/her return if the option is not exercised by the holder.

Interest Rate Risk

The interest rate risk results from the possibility of future interest rate changes in the market. The buyer/seller of an interest rate option may incur a price loss if interest rates rise/fall. The more pronounced the increase/decrease in interest rates is, the higher is the risk. This may result in a virtually unlimited potential of loss. The premium of an interest rate option is determined by the following factors:

1. volatility of interest rates
2. agreed strike price
3. life of the option
4. market interest level
5. current financing cost

This means that the price of an option may remain unchanged or decrease even though interest rates may have developed as you expected.

Credit Risk

The credit risk taken by the buyer of an interest rate option derives from the possibility of the counterparty's default. This would involve the loss of the premium already paid and thus indirectly the need to make more expensive covering transactions in the market.

Risk of Total Premium Loss at Purchase

The risk involved in the purchase of interest rate options is the total loss of the premium. This happens if the option holder lets the option expire in view of the interest trend in the market.

Special Features of Interest Rate Options

Interest rate options do not have standardised terms, but they are exclusively customised investments. Therefore, it is imperative that full information on the exact terms and conditions of such options is gathered, in particular:

Style of exercise

Is the option exercisable at any time during its life (American option) or only at expiry (European option)?

Exercise

Delivery of the underlying instruments or cash settlement?

Expiry

When does the option expire? Please note that Company will not exercise your option without your specific instruction.

Cross Currency Swaps (CCS)

A cross currency swap regulates the exchange between two contracting parties of different interest obligations and of different currencies in respect of a fixed notional amount. As a rule, fixed interest rates in one currency are exchanged against fixed interest rates in another.

It is, however, also possible to exchange floating rates in one currency against floating rates in another. The payment streams will take place in different currencies on the basis of the same principal amount, which is fixed on contract date at the spot rate ruling that day.

In addition to an exchange of interest rate payments, an exchange of principal will take place at the start (initial exchange) and at expiry (final exchange) of the swap. The parties may agree on the omission of the initial exchange.

Return

The return on a cross currency swap cannot be determined in advance. In the event of a positive development of the exchange rate and the interest rate differential, a return can be achieved by liquidating the position prior to maturity.

If a cross currency swap is concluded to improve the interest rate differential, lower interest rates in one currency may result in a profit.

However, this gain may be wiped out by any currency losses. If the exchange rate develops favourably, the return can be even increased.

Interest Risk

The interest rate risk results from the uncertainty as to future interest rate moves in the market. The buyer/seller of a cross currency swap may incur a loss if the market interest rate level or the interest rate differential falls/rises.

Currency Risk

The currency risk results from the uncertainty as to future moves in the values of the two currencies. It is important to note that, in the case of cross currency swaps with final exchange, the currency risk exists not only in the event of counterparty's default but throughout the life of the swap.

Credit Risk

The credit risk in connection with the purchase/sale of cross currency swaps derives from the possibility of the counterparty's default, making more expensive covering transactions in the market necessary.

Instrument GLD

The Instrument GLD – is a non-deliverable derivative instrument for the forward contract XAUUSD. The price of this instrument is assumed to be equal to the price of the instrument XAUUSD in the trading platform MetaTrader.

A unit of the Instrument GLD is equal to a thousandth of an ounce of gold. The Instrument GLD in case of a withdrawal is subject to an obligatory sale in the currencies of EURO/USD/RUR. The Instrument GLD does not imply obtaining rights on gold nor receiving gold in any given way.

Currency Risk

Risk inherent in transactions with the Instrument GLD presents a possibility, that in the period between the buying and selling of the instrument, the dynamics of the underlying asset will be different from the expectations at the time of purchase. This could lead to a sufficient loss of capital invested.

Credit Risk

Credit risk connected with the Instrument GLD means the possibility of default of the issuer on the transaction in connection with insolvency, i.e. a temporary or permanent inability of one party to close an instrument in a foreign currency. This would entail the need to increase costs on the operation in the OTC market.

Interest Rate Risk

The interest rate risk results from the uncertainty as to future changes in interest rates. The general rule is: the more pronounced the increase/decrease in interest rates is, the higher is the risk.

Liquidity Risk

In some markets, a closing position on the underlying asset (sale / repurchase of contracts) can result in significant adverse price movements in the case of excess supply or excess demand.

Investment Risks Related to Trading in Contracts For Difference (CFDs) (Investor warning by the European Securities and Markets Authority)

CFDs are complex products, generally used for speculative purposes. A CFD is an agreement between a 'buyer' and a 'seller' to exchange the difference between the current price of an underlying asset (shares, currencies, commodities, indices, etc.) and its price when the contract is closed.

CFDs are leveraged products. They offer exposure to the markets while requiring you to only put down a small margin ('deposit') of the total value of the trade. They allow investors to take advantage of prices moving up (by taking 'long positions') or prices moving down (by taking 'short positions') on underlying assets.

In addition to any profits or losses, there are different types of costs linked to transactions in CFDs. Costs will impact the effective return. Examples of costs include charge of commissions, for example charge of a general commission, or a commission on each trade (i.e. on opening and closing a contract). Costs related to CFD trading may also include bid-offer spreads, daily and overnight financing costs, account management fees, and taxes as may be applicable. These costs can be complex to calculate and may outweigh the gross profits from a trade.

What are the main risks of investing in CFDs?

CFDs, especially when highly leveraged (the higher the leverage of the CFD, the more risky it becomes), carry a very high level of risk. They are not standardized products. CFD providers have their own terms, conditions and costs. Therefore, generally, they are not suitable for most retail investors.

Investors should only consider trading in CFDs if they wish to speculate, especially on a very short-term basis, or if Investors wish to hedge against an exposure in their existing portfolio, and if Investors have extensive experience in trading, in particular during volatile markets, and can afford any losses.

Timing risk

CFDs are not suitable for 'buy and hold' trading. They can require constant monitoring over a short period of time (minutes/hours/days). Even maintaining your investment overnight exposes you to greater risk and additional cost.

The volatility of the stock market and other financial markets, together with the extra leverage on your investment, can result in rapid changes to your overall investment position. Immediate action may be required to manage your risk exposure, or to post additional margin.

Therefore, if you do not have enough time to monitor your investment on a regular basis, you should not trade in CFDs.

Liquidity risk

Liquidity risk affects your ability to trade. It is the risk that your CFD or asset cannot be traded at the time you want to trade (to prevent a loss, or to make a profit).

In addition, the margin you need to maintain as a deposit with the CFD provider is recalculated daily in accordance with changes in the value of the underlying assets of the CFDs you hold. If this recalculation (revaluation) produces a reduction in value compared with the valuation on the previous day, you will be required to pay cash to the CFD provider immediately in order to restore the margin position and to cover the loss. If you cannot make the payment, then the CFD provider may close your position whether or not you agree with this action. You will have to meet the loss, even if the price of the underlying asset subsequently recovers. There are CFD providers that liquidate all your CFD positions if you do not have the required margin, even if one of those positions is showing a profit for you at that stage.

To keep your position open, you may have to agree to allow the CFD provider to take additional payments (usually from your credit card), at their discretion, when required to meet relevant margin calls. In a fast moving, volatile market you can easily run up a large credit card bill in this way.

Leverage risk

Leveraged trading means that potential profits are magnified; it also means that losses are magnified. The lower the margin requirement, the higher the risk of potential losses if the market moves against you. Sometimes the margins required can be as little as 0.5%. Be aware that when trading using margin, your losses can exceed your initial payment and it is possible.

Stop loss' limits

To limit losses many CFD providers offer you the opportunity to choose 'stop loss' limits. This automatically closes your position when it reaches a price limit of your choice. There are some circumstances in which a 'stop loss' limit is ineffective - for example, where there are rapid price movements, or market closure. Stop loss limits cannot always protect you from losses.

Execution risk

Execution risk is associated with the fact that trades may not take place immediately. For example, there might be a time lag between the moment you place your order and the moment it is executed. In this period, the market might have moved against you. That is, your order is not executed at the price you expected.

Some CFD providers allow you to trade even when the market is closed. Be aware that the prices for these trades can differ widely from the closing price of the underlying asset. In many cases, the spread can be wider than it is when the market is open

Counterparty risk

Counterparty risk is the risk that the provider issuing the CFD (i.e. your counterparty) defaults and is unable to meet its financial obligations. If your funds are not properly segregated from the CFD provider's Funds, and the CFD provider faces financial difficulties, then there is a risk that you may not receive back any monies due to you.

Stop-loss

The Company shall not be held liable for the non-execution or improper execution of stop-loss orders or limit orders placed by the Client, and also for any losses inflicted against the Client due to the non-execution/improper execution of said stop-loss orders if such non-execution is caused by systemic and other risks as provided in APPENDIX 10 and APPENDIX 11 to these Brokerage Regulations.

To avoid/mitigate the above risks the Company shall have the right to take technical action, including action to limit the placement of stop-loss orders through the online trading system without further notice of the Client, but the Company shall not be able to fully exclude all risks that may arise.

The Client shall accept all risks set forth in this clause.

Investment Risks Related to Cryptocurrencies

The Company may, at its sole discretion, offer CFDs on cryptocurrencies for trading on its Online Trading Systems, from time to time. Cryptocurrencies, when used in this Agreement, unless the context otherwise requires, shall mean a type of decentralized digital currency or asset which is not issued by any central bank or issuer in which encryption techniques are used to facilitate the generation of units of the currency or asset and verify the transfer of units ("Cryptocurrencies").

The Client hereby acknowledges and accepts that Cryptocurrencies are traded on non-regulated decentralized digital exchanges and that there is no specific regulatory framework governing the trading in Cryptocurrencies. As such, Cryptocurrencies are not recognized as Financial Instruments under MiFID.

Accordingly, price formation and price movements of these products depend solely on the internal rules of the particular digital exchange which may be subject to change at any point in time and without prior notice. In this respect, you further acknowledge and accept that this may often lead to wide fluctuation (i.e. high volatility) in the prices of these products, which may be substantially higher compared to the Financial Instruments offered by the Company, and may result in significant loss over a short period of time.

The market and pricing data on Cryptocurrencies are derived from the digital decentralized exchanges that the Cryptocurrencies are traded on. Due to the fact that the market and data pricing formation rules on Cryptocurrencies, provided by such exchanges, are not subject to any regulatory supervision, they may be subject to changes in the relevant digital exchange's discretion at any time. Likewise, such digital exchanges may introduce trading suspensions or take other actions that may result in the suspension or cessation of trading on such exchanges or the price and market data feed becoming unavailable to us.

The above factors could result in material adverse effect on your open positions, including the loss of all of your invested capital. Where a temporary or permanent disruption to or cessation of trading occurs on any digital exchange from which we derive our price feeds for the relevant Cryptocurrency, your positions in such Cryptocurrency will be priced at the last available price for the relevant Cryptocurrency, and you may be unable to close or liquidate your position or withdraw any funds related to such position until the trading on the relevant digital exchange resumes (if at all).

You accept that where trading resumes again at either the relevant initial digital exchange or on any successor exchange thereof, there may be significant price differential (price gapping) which may impact the value of your CFD positions in the relevant Cryptocurrencies and result in significant profit or losses. Where trading does not resume, all of your invested capital could potentially be lost. You hereby acknowledge and accept that you have been informed by the Company of and understand this particular risk into account when taking investment decisions in respect of trading CFDs on Cryptocurrencies.

APPENDIX 11 TO THE BROKERAGE REGULATIONS: RISKS RELATED TO MARGIN AND NON-COVERED TRANSACTIONS

This information is provided for your familiarization and further signature in connection with your desire to execute Margin and Non-covered Transactions on international stock markets in order and according to the conditions offered by the Company and /or third parties.

This information is not exhaustive and does not describe the entire scope of risks related to Margin and Non-covered Transactions. Its main purpose is to give you general and, whenever possible, comprehensive information on the risks arising in connection with margin trading.

The main purpose of the margin lending is granting to the Clients greater opportunity for profit. At the same time you should understand the raised risk. Prior to exercising margin privileges you agree to carefully consider whether margin trading is suitable for you, taking into consideration your financial resources, objectives and other relevant circumstances and your tolerance for risk along with margin requirements published on the Company's and/or third parties' websites.

In case of margin lending is granted to you by the third parties, you agree that margin or unsecured transactions are executed on the terms specified by the third parties using funds provided by the third parties and information on your margin positions will be disclosed to these third parties for monitoring of your margin position by these third parties. The Company shall control the activity of these third parties on monitoring of your margin positions.

When trading with borrowed monetary Funds, you bear all the risks associated with trading ordinary on stock markets plus some additional risks. This Declaration focuses on these additional risks related to Margin/ Non-covered Transactions in greater detail.

Let us consider three possible scenarios to describe the potential risks: (1) Margin/Non-covered Transaction on buying Financial Instruments; (2) Margin/Non-covered Transaction on selling Financial Instruments; (3) selling Financial Instruments when they are not available or not sufficient for settlement of transactions concluded in your interest in case when the record date for the dividend payment related to Financial Instruments' is ratified and announced within the timeframe of Client's Indebtedness before the Company and /or third parties.

- a. When issuing an instruction to purchase Financial Instruments, the Client bears a price risk on the Assets acquired on the basis that the Instruction is not secured by Client's funds and on the Assets used to secure Company's and /or third parties' requirements to the Client. Thus, the amount of the Client's Assets exposed to the risk of adverse price fluctuations is greater than in the case of usual trading when the Client's Instructions are secured with cash. In other words, the losses can take place much earlier and of a greater scale than in case of usual trading. It's necessary to note the fact that in this case the amount of losses is limited by the sum of Margin/Non-covered Transactions but not with the Client's assets.
- b. When issuing an instruction on Margin/Non-covered Transaction on selling Financial Instruments, the Client bears a price risk on the Assets to be sold on the basis of the Instruction not secured by Client's funds and on the Assets used to secure Company's and /or third parties' requirements to the Client. The core difference is that the scale of losses in this case is not limited. The Client is obliged to return the Financial Instruments irrespective of their price fluctuations. Meanwhile the current market value of Financial Instruments can significantly exceed their value in Margin/Non-covered Transaction settlements.
- c. When the record date for the payment of dividend attributable to Financial Instruments' is within the timeframe of Client's Indebtedness before the Company and /or third parties arisen in connection of Margin/Non-covered Transactions in Client's interests, the Client undertakes to pay the Company and /or third parties a sum of money equal to the sum of dividends of the Financial Instruments used by the Company and /or third parties for settlements of such Margin/Non-covered Transactions.

A significant factor influencing the increase of the Client's risk is the requirement to maintain a necessary level of collateral reflecting the sufficiency of the Client's funds to satisfy the requirements of the Company and/or third parties. When the actual level of collateral decreases the Company and /or third parties require the Client to increase it to an acceptable level. This may necessitate the Client to sell some of the Client's Assets irrespective of the prevailing market conditions and accept and incur losses from such sale.

Short Selling Risk

The concept of short selling is a fairly simple - you borrow a stock, sell it, wait for its price to drop, and then buy it back at the lower price to return it to the lender. Short selling has its risks.

- a. History has shown that in the long term markets trend upwards.
- b. When short selling, the losses can be unlimited.
- c. Margin trading is always riskier.
- d. A short selling stock includes margin trading. Just as with going long on margin, selling short on margin can significantly increase your losses.
- e. Short selling includes the risk of a "short squeeze". When many short sellers try to cover their positions at once because a stock price has started to rise, this can drive the prices up even further. This is known as a "short squeeze" and can make you lose money very fast.

In addition to the aforesaid the Company hereby notifies the Client, and the Client agrees that for ensuring its interests in Margin/Non-covered Transactions executed in Client's interests:

- (i) the Company has a right to execute exclusively at Company's own discretion the following actions and transactions, and the Client shall bear and accept such risks, and the risk of possible losses arising from the following actions:
 - (i) to refuse the execution of the Client's Instruction for Margin/Non-covered Transaction or suspend its execution, whereas, the performance of Margin/Non-covered transactions may result in incremental credit or/and market risks of the Company and /or third parties;
 - (ii) provided that granting funds and Financial Instruments depends on actual availability of the funds and Financial Instruments in the market and at Company's and /or third parties' disposal, the Company and /or third parties, exclusively at its own discretion and without any sanctions against the Company and /or third parties,
 - (iii) to refuse to grant monetary funds and/or financial instruments;
 - (iv) to pay off Indebtedness in full or in part regardless to of the actual level of collateral;
 - (v) to dispose the Client's funds for the purpose of acquiring Financial Instruments to settle the Client's Indebtedness before the Company and /or third parties;
 - (vi) to sell the Client's Financial Instruments for the purpose of settling the Client's Indebtedness before the Company and /or third parties, and
- (ii) the Client shall bear and accept abovementioned in item (i) risks, and the risk of possible losses, including opportunity losses, arising from the abovementioned actions of the Company.

The Company and also the third parties via which the margin service is provided to the Clients have the right to unilaterally change the conditions of the provision of the service, as well as refuse provision of the service to the Client. The Client shall pay the Company and/or third parties remuneration for margin lending.

The Client shall bear sole responsibility for the financial result from the Client's Margin/Non-covered transactions even if negative financial result exceeds the sum of the Client's own Assets. The Company may request the Client to pay off all liabilities towards the Company and third parties before withdrawing monetary funds from the brokerage account if the Client has open positions on margin transactions.

Taking into account when contemplating Margin/Non-covered Transactions you should carefully consider the risks involved and decide whether they are acceptable for you in view of your possibilities and circumstances. We would also like to emphasize that the aforesaid is not intended to discourage you from Margin/Non-covered Transactions but was written for the only purpose of helping you understand the risks related to this business, decide on their suitability, define your financial goals, evaluate your potential, and make a responsible and informed decision on your investment strategy.

The Client acknowledges and declares that he has read and understood the Declaration of Risks related to Margin/Non-covered Transactions in international financial markets and agrees to bear the above-mentioned risks, including margin requirements of the Company and /or third parties when undertaking investment activities which involve Margin/Non-covered Transactions.

APPENDIX 12.1 TO THE BROKERAGE REGULATIONS: DECLARATION OF STRUCTURED PRODUCTS AS SERVICE PROVIDED BY THE COMPANY

This Declaration is intended for information only and describes the basic concepts of the 'Structured Product' Service. To fully understand the Service, it is necessary to review the Declaration of Risks of Structured Products (see APPENDIX 12.2), the Specifications of a Forward Contract and the contents of these Brokerage Regulations. All calculations in the examples in this Declaration are theoretical and may be different from actual situations.

Structured Product

Structured products are a compound financial instrument that are designed to generate income from investments and that is associated with a variety of risks. Structured products may be a combination of varied financial assets (stakes, bonds, futures, options, warrants, indexes, commodities, etc.)

Structured products are developed by the Company's specialists who rely on their specialized expertise in the field of Fundamental, technical, mathematical, economic, financial and other analyses to develop various combinations of Structured Products.

The 'Structured Product' Service is offered through the realization of a Forward Contract for change in the value of a Structured Product, a package of underlying assets that is comprised of a combination of varied financial assets issued by diverse companies.

For convenience of description, we refer to the issuers of the financial instruments included in a Structured Product, both each individual issuer and all such issuers as a group, as "Underlying Issuers".

A Forward Contract is characterized by specific parameters (structure, maturity date, investment costs and other conditions) that are recorded in a detailed Trading Order and in the Specifications of the Forward Contract.

The Client may not change the conditions of a Trading Order or the Specifications of a Forward Contract once these documents have been signed.

An Underlying Issuer is the source of all obligations attaching to the underlying assets included in a Forward Contract. An Underlying Issuer's obligations are a set of obligations of issuers of financial instruments included in a Structured Product, including but not limited to obligations of payment /transfer to owners of dividends, coupon payments and other interest payments, values at maturity and values at expiration, assets resulting from corporate actions and other payouts and distributions corresponding to the type, numbers and value of financial instrument.

Credit Event

A Credit Event is a change in the creditworthiness of an Underlying Issuer that, is characterized by certain conditions and that leads to the Underlying Issuer's defaulting on its obligations. A Credit Event may affect any of the Underlying Issuer's assets, including credit derivative instruments.

Throughout its entire business life, an Underlying Issuer is liable for any Credit Events, while the Company bears no liability whatsoever for any Credit Events. The occurrence of a Credit Event may accelerate a Forward Contract for reasons that the Company is not responsible for and that are not a result of its business operations. The Company is not liable for and may not be sued over an Underlying Issuer's obligations if any Credit Event occurs.

A Credit Event may be:

a) a bankruptcy that is understood as:

1. an Underlying Issuer's liquidation (excepting a merger);
2. an Underlying Issuer's (financial) insolvency;
3. assignment of right of claim (cession);
4. initiation of bankruptcy proceedings against an Underlying Issuer in court;
5. appointment of an external administrator of an Underlying Issuer's property;
6. attachment by a third party of all of an Underlying Issuer's property;

- b) acceleration of an obligation, which means declaration of default on any other similar obligation of an Underlying Issuer and the triggering of the acceleration clause on that obligation;
- c) default on an Underlying Issuer's obligation that means a default on any other similar obligation of that Underlying Issuer;
- d) insolvency meaning failure by an Underlying Issuer to pay a certain amount in time;
- e) refusal to pay or moratorium on payment in which the Underlying Issuer refuses to make a payment or challenges the legal force of an obligation;
- f) restructuring of an Underlying Issuer's debt that causes unilateral refusal or suspension of payment or a change in the repayment schedule of debt at less advantageous conditions.

Any of the following facts may also be recognized as a Credit Event:

- 7. a rating agency cuts or recalls an Underlying Issuer's credit rating;
- 8. a currency becomes non-convertible because of restrictions imposed by the state;
- 9. a change in the currency of the Underlying Issuer's obligations that are denominated in a different currency during the offering period of such obligations
- 10. the actions of state authorities by which the following is understood:
 - (a) declarations and actions of the government or regulators that challenge the legal force of an Underlying Issuer's obligations;
 - (b) war or hostilities that prevent the government or the banking system from doing business as usual.

Forward Contract is Marginal

The Client may buy a Forward Contract in a partial asset commitment mode. A partial asset commitment is a variety of leverage that the Company's Client may use to increase its income from a favorable change in the prices of the underlying assets in a Forward Contract. When it uses partial asset commitment, Client has to take account of the risks of major losses that may be caused by an unfavorable change in the prices of the underlying assets in the Forward Contract.

The asset commitment level or the collateral level is set for each separate Forward Contract and it is specified in percentage points in the Trade Order signed by Client. A 100% level means that to buy a Forward Contract Client needs to commit the amount of funds equal to the full value of a Forward contract (the value of the financial instruments included in the Structured Product). A 10% level means that to buy a Forward Contract, a buyer needs to commit only 10% of the value of a Forward Contract.

The value of a Forward Contract

The value of a Forward Contract does not depend on the amount of assets committed and it may be different from the value specified in the Trade Order for a Forward Contract through the entire lifespan of such Forward Contract.

A Forward Contract may be accelerated at the option of Client, but the value after the sale of an accelerated Forward Contract may be far lower than the value of such Forward Contract if it were allowed to mature.

Venues (platforms, markets) of formation of Forward Contract

To calculate the value of a Forward Contract, various platforms, including over-the-counter ones, may be used that have admitted to trading or that quote the financial instruments included in a Structured Product, including but not limited to:

- 11. regulated markets;
- 12. organizers of trading other than regulated markets;^[1]_[SEP]
- 13. multilateral trading facilities;
- 14. organised trading facilities
- 15. systematic internalizers;
- 16. other investment firms, and/or their affiliated companies acting as marketmakers or liquidity providers.

Conditions of payments and settlements under Forward Contracts

Income is paid under Forward Contracts from the start to the end of the lifespan of a Forward Contract, in the form of a coupon or full repayment of the Forward Contract provided no Credit Event occurs throughout the lifespan of the Forward Contract.

The conditions and dates of repayment, payouts, income and other conditions are set forth in the Specifications of a Forward Contract. When a Forward Contract matures, provided no Credit Event has taken place, the amount of investment in the Forward Contract is paid.

If one of the Credit Events occurs, the Company undertakes to make settlements under the Forward Contract, to the extent that such settlements are feasible in connection with the actual Credit Event, within 30 days after the holder of the Forward Contract is notified of the occurrence of the Credit Event.

If a Credit Event occurs, the company may, at its own disposal, and based on the results of the settlements, to:

- pay the amount equal to the amount of Client's investment in the Forward Contract
- or deliver the underlying assets that were affected by the Underlying Issuer's Credit Event and that are included in the Forward Contract.

General conditions of Service.

To use the 'Structured Product' Service, it is necessary to review this APPENDIX, APPENDIX 12.2, the Specifications of Forward Contract, and to sign a Trade Order and Specifications of the Forward Contract. A trade order shall be executed within up to 3 business days.

By signing a Trade Order and Specifications of the Forward Contract, an investor understands and accepts the risks set forth in APPENDIX 12.2. No Company analytical information about any of the underlying assets included in a Structured Product may be relied upon as a recommendation to acquire a Forward Contract or the underlying assets included in a Forward Contract. Such information is solely of advisory nature.

By signing a trade order and the specifications of a Forward Contract, Client acknowledges its consent to acquire the Forward Contract and its understanding of all terms, conditions and settlement procedures of the Forward Contract it acquires.

APPENDIX 12.2 TO THE BROKERAGE REGULATIONS: DECLARATION OF RISKS OF STRUCTURED PRODUCTS

This Declaration describes the main risks of the 'Structured Product' Service. Apart from the risks specified in this Declaration, the Client shall be aware of and accept other risks described in these Brokerage Regulations. The 'Structured Product' Service means the buying by the Client of Forward Contracts for a compound financial instrument that includes varied underlying assets, is intended to generate income from investments and is associated with a variety of risks.

State-related risk

The risk of state intervention or state influence exercised in other forms upon the operations of issuers, counterparties, financial companies and other organizations that arrange for and regulate trading on exchanges and over-the-counter trading, bank settlements and the existence of forward contracts.

Underlying Issuer risk

The Underlying Issuer risk is associated with the potential default of an Underlying Issuer (as defined in APPENDIX 12.1), i.e., an Underlying Issuer's failure to fulfill in time and in full its obligations such as the payment of dividends, coupons, redemption of bond amounts, payments at maturity and/or at expiration of derivative contracts and other accruing amounts and payouts corresponding to the type of financial instrument, its numbers and price. If it occurs, this risk may result in the partial or total loss of the value of a Forward Contract.

Interest risk

The risk that losses will be incurred as a result of future changes in the market interest rate is referred to as interest risk.

Full loss risk

This term means the risk that the financial instruments included in a Structured Product may lose all their value. If this risk occurs, a Forward Contract may lose all its value, and Client may lose all investments and future income from investments in the Structured Product.

Market risk

Market risk is the risk of potential losses caused by the fluctuation of prices of the underlying assets included in a Structured Product. If it occurs, this risk can lower the value of a Forward Contract and/or reduce the amounts of payments under the Forward Contract, if any are provided by its specifications.

Liquidity risk

Marketability (liquidity) means that a security can be sold or a position in a derivative financial instrument can be closed on the market at the market price at any time.

The liquidity risk consists in that the underlying assets included in a Structured Product cannot be sold or they can only be sold at a large discount to the acquisition price. The liquidity risk may be associated with high volatility of the market prices of the underlying assets in a Structured Product, and also with unexpected restrictions on and changes of trading conditions by organizers of trading on exchanges and in over-the-counter markets. The liquidity risk may also result from an early termination of a Forward Contract under Client's order. If it occurs, this risk entails the loss of much or all value of a Forward Contract.

Coupon risk

The coupon risk arises in the event that an Underlying Issuer is affected by the occurrence of a Credit Event, as a result of which the Underlying Issuer fails to make coupon payments and other mandatory periodic payments in time and/or in full. If it occurs, this risk can reduce the amount of payments of prevent payments under a Forward Contract, if any are provided for by its specifications.

Underlying asset delivery risk

There is a delivery risk of an Underlying Issuer's underlying asset that is affected by the occurrence of a Credit Event. The delivery risk of an underlying asset implies the delivery of an asset that is affected by the occurrence of a Credit Event.

An ahead-of-schedule and unexpected delivery of an underlying asset may lead to the reduction in value of a Forward Contract and the occurrence of Liquidity Risk.

Settlement risks

The settlement risk consists in that Client may not receive some of the payouts attaching to the underlying assets included in a Structured Product, if any or if any are provided for by the Underlying Issuer. All payments to be made under a Forward Contract and their amounts and payment dates are set forth in the Specifications. If such is the case, the income received in accordance with the specifications of a Forward Contract may be different from the income Client could receive if it acquired such underlying assets not under a Forward Contract. In this event, calculation of profitability of a Forward Contract may also be different from that of its underlying assets.

Service risk

The Service does not provide a 100% guarantee of capital protection. There is always a risk that Client may lose all or part of the invested amount because one of the above risks occurs. The Company does not guarantee or expect a 100% protection of capital.

The Individual Investment Portfolio is a complex financial instrument aimed at earning income from investing in a combination of financial assets and is associated with various risks. The Individual Investment Portfolio is a combination of various financial assets such as stocks, bonds, futures, options, warrants, indexes, cryptocurrencies and others.

Individual Investment Portfolios are developed by the Company's specialists who rely on their expertise in the field of Fundamental, technical, mathematical, economic, financial and other analyses to construct various combinations of Individual Investment Portfolios in order to optimize the risk / reward relationship for varying levels of risk appetite.

The 'Individual Investment Portfolios Service is offered through the combination of non-complex and complex financial instruments issued by various companies.

For convenience, we refer to the issuers of the financial instruments included in an Individual Investment Portfolio, individually and collectively, as the "Basic Issuer".

An Individual Investment Portfolio has specific parameters which – among others - include the repayment date, investment amount, level of capital protection and these are reflected in the Client's Private Cabinet.

There are various parameters to the Trade Order for purchasing an Individual Investment Portfolio, such as - lot size, type of transaction, market or limited price, name and ticker of the instrument, investment period, capital protection and others. The Company reserves the right to independently determine those parameters that it deems necessary for purchasing an Individual Investment Portfolio.

Trading instruments in this Trade Order may include various assets such as stocks, bonds, futures, options, warrants, indices, various types of cryptocurrencies and crypto-instruments etc. The mix of the various assets in each Trade Order is determined by the Company.

The Client may not change the conditions of a Trading Order and the terms of an Individual Investment Portfolio once these documents have been agreed with the Company.

A Basic Issuer is the source of the underlying asset(s) included in the Individual Investment Portfolio and bears all obligations and responsibilities deriving from such asset(s) included in the Individual Investment Portfolio.

A Basic Issuer's obligations consist of a set of obligations included in the Individual Investment Portfolio that include but are not limited to the obligations of payment/transfer to the owners of dividends, coupon payments and other interest payments, values at maturity and values at expiration, assets resulting from corporate actions and other payouts and distributions appropriate to the type of financial instrument, its quantity and value.

A Credit Event may affect any of the Basic Issuer's assets - including credit derivative instruments.

A Basic Issuer is liable for any Credit Events for financial instruments included in the Individual Investment Portfolio and the Company bears no liability in any way to such Credit Events.

The occurrence of a Credit Event may lead to the early repayment of the Individual Investment Portfolio, for reasons not due to the fault of the Company and not as a result of the activities of the Company.

The Company is not liable for and may not be sued over a Basic Issuer's obligations if any Credit Event occurs. Credit Events may include:

 2. war or hostilities that prevent the government or the banking system from doing business as usual.

Margin of an Individual Investment Portfolio

Clients may purchase an Individual Investment Portfolio in a partial asset commitment mode, subject to the provision of this opportunity by the Company.

A partial asset commitment is a form of leverage that the Company's Client may take advantage of to increase their income from a favorable change in the prices of the underlying assets included in the Individual Investment Portfolio.

When using partial asset commitment, the Client has to take into consideration the risk of major losses that may be incurred as a result of an unfavorable change in the prices of the underlying assets included in the Individual Investment Portfolio.

The asset commitment level or the level of collateral for each financial instrument in the Individual Investment Portfolios is determined by the Company.

A 100% commitment level means that in order to buy an Individual Investment Portfolio, the Client needs to commit an amount of funds equal to the full value of an Individual Investment Portfolio (the value of the financial instruments included in Individual Investment Portfolio). A 10% commitment level means that in order to buy an Individual Investment Portfolio, a buyer needs to commit only 10% of the value of the Individual Investment Portfolio.

The value of an Individual Investment Portfolio

The value of an Individual Investment Portfolio does not depend on the value of assets committed and it may be different from the value specified in the Trade Order for an Individual Investment Portfolio throughout the life of the Individual Investment Portfolio.

An Individual Investment Portfolio may be sold prior to its maturity at the request of the Client, but in such a case the price to sell may be significantly lower than the purchase price of the Individual Investment Portfolio.

Places (platforms, markets) for the formation of the Individual Investment Portfolio

To calculate the value of an Individual Investment Portfolio, various over-the-counter trading platforms, on which financial instruments included in the Individual Investment Portfolio are admitted to trading or quoted including but not limited to:

4. other organizers of trading other than regulated markets;
5. multilateral trading facilities;
6. organised trading facilities
7. systematic internalizes;
8. cryptocurrency exchanges
9. crypto brokers with cryptocurrency instruments created by this broker.
10. other investment firms, brokers and/or their affiliated companies acting as market makers or other liquidity providers.

Terms of payments and settlements for Individual Investment Portfolios

The conditions and dates of repayment, payouts, income and other conditions are set forth in the Client's Private Cabinet when choosing one of the options for an Individual Investment Portfolio. Upon the expiration of the Individual Investment Portfolio, and provided that no Credit Event has taken place, either the investment amount is paid in accordance with the chosen capital protection, or the investment amount is paid plus the income received from the implementation of the favorable scenario of investing in the instruments included in the Individual Investment Portfolio.

If one of the Credit Events occurs, the Company undertakes to make settlements under the Individual Investment Portfolio, based on the possibility of carrying out these calculations in the connection with the Credit Event within 30 days after sending a notice to the holder of the Individual Investment Portfolio about the occurrence of the Credit Event.

If a Credit Event occurs, according to the results of calculations, the company may, at its own disposal to:

11. pay the amount equal to the amount of Client's investment in the Individual Investment Portfolio; or
12. deliver the underlying assets that were affected by the Basic Issuer's Credit Event and that are included in the Individual Investment Portfolio; or

APPENDIX 13.2 TO THE BROKERAGE REGULATIONS: DECLARATION OF RISKS OF INDIVIDUAL INVESTMENT PORTFOLIO SERVICE

The present Declaration describes the main risks of the 'Individual Investment Portfolio' Service. Apart from the risks specified in this Declaration, the Client shall be aware of and accept other risks described in these Brokerage Regulations.

The 'Individual Investment Portfolio' Service is aimed at generating income from investments by combining various financial instruments (stocks, bonds, futures, options, warrants, indices, various types of cryptocurrencies and crypto-instruments, goods, etc.). As such it should be considered to be a complex investment product with significant investment risks. The combination of various financial instruments under a single product aims to optimize the expected level of profitability for a defined level of risk.

State-related risk

State relate risk represents the risk of state intervention or other forms of state influence on the activities of issuers, counterparties, financial companies and other organizations that provide and regulate trading exchanges and over-the-counter trading, bank settlements and the existence of forward contracts.

Basic Issuer risk

Basic Issuer risk is associated with the potential default of a Basic Issuer (as defined in APPENDIX 13.1), i.e., a Basic Issuer's failure to fulfil in time and in full its obligations such as the payment of dividends, coupons, redemption of bond amounts, payments at maturity and/or at expiration of derivative contracts and other accruing amounts and payouts corresponding to the type of financial instrument, its numbers and price. If realized, this risk may result in the partial or total loss of the value of an Individual Investment Portfolio.

Interest risk

Interest risk represents the risk that losses will be incurred as a result of future changes in the market interest rate(s).

Full loss risk

Full loss risk represents the risk that the financial instruments included in Individual Investment Portfolio may lose all of their value. If this risk materializes the Individual Investment Portfolio may lose all its value, and the Client may lose all investments and future income from investments in the Individual Investment Portfolio

Market risk

Market risk represents the risk of potential losses caused by the fluctuation of prices of the underlying assets included in an Individual Investment Portfolio. If it materializes, this risk can lower the value of an Individual Investment Portfolio and/or reduce the amounts of payments under the Individual Investment Portfolio, if any are provided by its specifications.

Liquidity risk

Marketability (liquidity) refers to how easy/difficult it is for a Security can be sold or a position in a derivative financial instrument can be closed in the market at the market price at any time.

Liquidity risk lies in the impossibility of selling the underlying assets that make up the Individual Investment Portfolio, or in the possibility of selling only at a large discount to the purchase price.

The liquidity risk may be associated with high volatility of the market prices of the underlying assets in an Individual Investment Portfolio, as well as with unexpected restrictions and changes of trading conditions on organized markets, exchanges and over-the-counter markets.

The liquidity risk may also be a result of an early termination of an Individual Investment Portfolio under the Client's order.

Realization of this risk will entail a significant reduction in the cost of the Individual Investment Portfolio or a complete loss of its value.

Coupon risk

Coupon risk arises in the event that a Basic Issuer is affected by the occurrence of a Credit Event, as a result of which the Basic Issuer fails to make coupon payments and other mandatory periodic payments in time and/or in full. If it materializes, it can reduce the amount of payments or complete cancellation of payments under the Contract, if such are specified by the specification.

Underlying asset delivery risk

There is a delivery risk of a Basic Issuer's underlying asset that is affected by the occurrence of a Credit Event. The delivery risk of an underlying asset implies the delivery of an asset that is affected by the occurrence of a Credit Event. An ahead-of-schedule and unexpected delivery of an underlying asset may lead to the reduction in value of Individual Investment Portfolio, as well as the implementation of Liquidity Risk.

Settlement risks

Settlement risk consists in that Client may not receive some of the payouts attaching to the underlying assets included in an Individual Investment Portfolio, if any and / or provided by the Basic Issuer. At the same time, the income received on the Individual Investment Portfolio may differ from the income that the client could have received when purchasing the indicated underlying assets outside the Individual Investment Portfolio. At the same time, the calculation of the return on the Individual Investment Portfolio may also differ from the calculation of the total of the returns on each of the underlying assets.

Service risk

The Service does not guarantee 100% capital protection. There is always a risk that Client may lose all or part of the invested amount because any one of the above risks may materialize. The Company does not guarantee or expect a 100% protection of capital in the event of a Credit Event or any other force majeure.

If any of the above risks (one or several at the same time) occurs, that can reduce the value of an Individual Investment Portfolio or even cause the loss of its entire value.

The materialization of any of the above risks (one or several at the same time) may lead to a reduction or cancellation of periodic payments for the Individual Investment Portfolio, if any.

Any reduction of the value of Individual Investment Portfolio because of the occurrence of any of the above risks may result in the Client receiving a lower income from the Individual Investment Portfolio than would otherwise be expected by the Client, and possibly result in the partial or total loss by Client of his investments.

By signing a Trade Order, the Client acknowledges that he has familiarized himself with the present APPENDIX, and that agrees and is aware of the fact that making investments in an Individual Investment Portfolio is associated with systemic, credit, technical, currency, tax, market, legal and operational risks as well as the risks described above and below.

Risks

REPO is a repurchase agreement where a seller of a security agrees to buy it back from a buyer at a higher price on a specified date.

Credit risk

While classic REPOs are generally credit-risk mitigated instruments, there are residual credit risks. The seller may fail to repurchase the securities sold, at the maturity date. Consequently, the buyer may keep the security, and liquidate the security to recover the cash lent. The security, however, may have lost value since the outset of the transaction as the security is subject to market movements.

Occasionally, a party involved in a REPO transaction may not have a specific bond at the end of the REPO contract. This may cause a string of failures from one party to the next, for as long as different parties have transacted for the same underlying instrument.

Credit risk associated with REPO is subject to many factors: term of REPO, liquidity of security, the strength of the counterparties involved, etc.

Rights and obligations

The Company shall bear no responsibility before the Client for any actions, inactions or omissions of a third party and also for any losses incurred by the Client in a result of actions, inactions or omissions of a third party unless such losses directly arises from the Company's willful default or fraud or gross negligence. The Company shall also bear no responsibility or liability for unfavorable consequences for the Client due to the insolvency/bankruptcy of a third party.

Client's consent

The Client hereby confirms that before entering into the Brokerage Agreement he/she has carefully studied and fully agrees with the Brokerage Regulations which will also govern the execution of REPO transactions service.
